K. C. OUTING AT VERDUGO PARK BIG SUCCESS

Miss Eve Brehme Is Queen And Varied Program Wins Approval

WHILE a stunting airplane flashed and looped overhead, and Glendale's own Elks' band poured out rich, melodious strains, Carmel Myers, famous movie star, proclaimed Miss Eva Brehme, of 806 South Maryland avenue, queen of the giant Knights of Columbus picnic held yesterday at Verdugo Park.

This culminating event took place late in the afternoon, before a crowd estimated as upwards of 3000 people, Miss Miss Brehme being voted the fairest of many competing beauties.

Dancing then followed, with music by the Elks' band, the floor of the big auditorium being crowded until late in the evening.

Earlier in the day there had been many games and stunts for old and young, and much interest was shown in the various concessions. Particular praise is due William Ahearn, past grand knight of the San Diego lodge, who with his twenty Irish Colleens in their pretty green dresses and white aprons and caps, succeeded in making the ham concession an outstanding success.

Numerous Features

Dr. Milton H. Berry, chairman of the picnic committee, was largely responsible for the success of the entire affair. With him worked Harry Girard, grand knight of the Glendale lodge.

Among the many other features of the big carnival was the presence of the Glee Club of the Los Angeles Elks; the Henry Savage operatic quartet, featuring the popular tenor, Joseph Sheehan in "Mother Macree" and other old favorites, with Martha Richardson as contralto, Agnes Brown as soprano and Harry Girard as baritone.

Jimmy Murphy, noted auto racer, was also on the program; and there were many high-class vaudeville and novelty acts, keeping the great throng entertained from morning until night, with not a hiatus or a dull moment.

Address by Mayor

Glendale's "singing mayor," Spencer Robinson, delivered the address of welcome, speaking of the stability of the Knights of Columbus and telling them they were highly respected in Glendale, part and parcel of the progress and development of the city.

Joseph Scott, K. G., of Pasadena, past state supreme grand knight, then delivered the address of the day, dwelling on the amazing progress of the community, ringing the bells of patriotism and rapping in no uncertain terms "certain forces from within as well as from without" that are gnawing at the very vitals of American institutions.

"Not as Catholics, not as Knights of Columbus, but as all-wool, homespun Americans, we say to the Bolshevists and the K. K. K.s—you have no place upon the free soil of America!" declared Mr. Scott, and there followed volleying, long-continued applause.

All For America

"You can bank on the K. of C. keeping Old Glory flying at the masthead," the orator told the vast throng that packed the auditorium and surged around the outside in hundreds, unable to get in. "We teach patriotism as a fundamental virtue. We demand the highest type of Americansim. We believe that patriotism needs developing, the same as any other function, and are earnestly, soulfully endeavoring to do our part

John G. Huntley Is Dead Of Injuries; Funeral Services To Be Held Tuesday Morning

JOHN G. HUNTLEY is dead and Glendale mourns the loss of a loyal, upright citizen, an active and successful business man, and everyone who knew him regrets the loss of a real friend. Mr. Huntley's death occurred early Sunday morning, June 24, 1923, at the Glendale Research hospital, where he and his family and physicians vainly fought for his life over five weeks, following injuries he received Thursday, May 17, when he was thrown from his horse. Two days after the accident Mr. Huntley underwent a serious major operation, from which he rallied and his physicians, family and friends were hopeful of his recovery. However, he suffered a relapse, necessitating a second operation a week ago Saturday and although his courage and vitality were wonderful, it was a losing fight and death came early yesterday morning.

While in the hospital Mr. Huntley was confident of recovery and resumption of business activities, and in his hours of intense suffering he looked forward to the time when he might receive his many friends for visits while recuperating. And inquiries and messages for both him and Mrs. Huntley poured into the hospital daily.

Born In Pennsylvania

John G. Huntley was born 51 years ago in Lancaster, Pennsylvania. He became an orphan at four years of age.

His early life and school days were spent in a boarding school in Philadelphia, and when he was seventeen years of age he went into business for himself and his success in Glendale was the crowning feature of a business career started when he was a boy.

Mr. Huntley was married December 22, 1898 to Edith Margaret Gardiner and last December Mr. and Mrs. Huntley celebrated their silver anniversary.

He and his family came to Glendale June 1, 1906, and since that time he had taken an active interest in everything for the development of the city.

Upon first coming to Glendale Mr. Huntley was engaged in business in Los Angeles. Later he entered the automobile business in Glendale. More recently he had been active in Glendale realty affairs, being associated with W. E. Evans in the Huntley-Evans tract in the Kenneth road district, and in the ownership of the Huntley-Evans buildng occupied by the Pendroy Department store. He was also interested in the development of Brand boulevard frontage.

Rotary Club Member

As a Rotarian, Mr. Huntley took as an inspiration for business activities the Rotary motto, "He profits most who serves best" and the high esteem in which he was held by his business associates reflects the uprightness of the man.

He was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Blue lodge and Royal Arch Masons.

Mr. Huntley is survived by his widow, Edith Huntley, and daughter, Virginia, of 1434 North Highland avenue, by another daughter, Mrs. Seymour Smith, formerly Miss Evangeline Huntley of 416 West Wilson avenue; by two grandchildren, Marcia and Jack Herbert Smith; and by a sister, Mrs. C. L. Myer of Santa Monica.

Funeral on Tuesday

Funeral services for Mr. Huntley are to be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Little Church of the Flowers in Forest Lawn Memorial park.

Because of Mr. Huntley's devotion to the principles and activities of the Rotary club, it is most fitting that members of that organization will form a guard of honor to Forest Lawn, attend the services in a body, and direct the services.

Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of the First Baptist church and chaplain of the Rotary club, will be the officiant. Mrs. Frank Arnold is to sing "Lead Kindly Light" and "No Night There."

There will be eight pallbearers, representing the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary club and Masonic lodge.

The Jewel City Undertaking company is in charge of the services and the burial, which will be in Forest Lawn.

At the time of the accident which resulted in his death, Mr. Huntley with Attorney W. E. Evans of 333 North Orange street, and Lucien Bullete of 128 South Orange street, a high school student, were riding horseback and were going from San Fernan-

NEW REPARATION PLAN ADVOCATED

German Corporations Would Pool Stock to Insure Indemnity Pledge

PARIS, June 25.—A new plan of reparations payments, privately submitted by German industrialists, is under consideration today by the inter-allied reparation commission, the Journal revealed. It is reported a majority of the commission favors the plan.

Herr Letwin, a Berlin banker, acting as spokesman for the German industrialists, suggested that all German corporations give one third of their stock to a Central German corporation, which will be charged with payment of the pledged sums.

This central corporation would thus become the "paying agent" for the German industrial group.

Weeping Woman Denies Murder of Paramour

NEW YORK, June 25. — Between sobs, Mrs. Anna Buzz swore on the witness stand in the Bronx supreme court this afternoon that she did not kill Frederick Schneider, wealthy contractor, with whom she had lived for eight years. There was a dramatic scene as her husband, whom she is alleged to have abandoned for Schneider eight years ago, confronted her in court.

DEATH TOLL IN CRASH REACHES THREE

Presidential Party Shrouded In Gloom When Third Victim Succumbs

DENVER, June 25.—The enthusiastic reception which Denver accorded President Harding was saddened today by the tragic Sunday auto accident in which members of his party figured at Bear Creek canyon.

The death toll of the accident was increased to three this morning when Thomas E. Dawson, former secretary of the United States senate, died of his injuries in Denver county hospital. Sumner Curtis, representative of the Republican National committee on the trip, and Thomas A. French of Denver, were killed outright. Donald Craig, Washington correspondent of the New York Herald, was severely injured but will recover, it was said at the hospital this morning.

Both the president and Mrs. Harding were shocked at the tragedy, and there was an air of sadness over the entire Alaskan party today. The president had been invited to go on the same auto trip which ended so tragically, but had declined.

Steering Gear Broke

Examination of the wrecked machine today led to the belief that a broken steering knuckle was responsible for the machine's suddenly veering off the road and crashing 75 feet into a rock-strewn canyon.

President Harding had one of the busiest days today he has experienced since leaving the capital. Speeches here at noon, and in Cheyenne early this evening were scheduled.

Refreshed by a night's sleep in a hotel, one of the few he will strike on his long westward journey, the president motored to the home of Senator Phipps this morning for breakfast. After breakfast he received members of the Ohio Society of Colorado, and later participated in a long auto parade through the city, which wound up at the state capitol where he greeted thousands of school children.

CATCH RUM RUNNER IN TEN MILE CHASE

Coast Guard's Guns Crash As Smuggler Seeks to Avoid Capture

NEW YORK, June 25.—Laying three shots, from her three-pound guns, across the bow of the Mary E. Gully, a 110-foot former submarine chaser, the United States coast guard Seminole, early today captured the rum runner after a ten-mile chase off the New Jersey shore.

The former submarine chaser, manned by a crew of six men, had visited the new rum fleet of thirty ships lying off the Jersey coast for the last two weeks.

During the night the boat took aboard its cargo, Seminole officers reported to the barge office. The Seminole, drifting in the darkness, watched the operation.

Pursuit Starts

As the Gulley set out for shore, the Seminole took out after her.

The chase was a thrilling one. The rum runner, observing she was being pursued, put full speed ahead. So did the Seminole. For ten miles along the Jersey coast, the two ships raced. The Seminole's searchlights finally found the rum runner. A blank shot boomed out. The liquor ship paid no heed.

"Fire!" commanded the Seminole's captain.

The gunner crew, their three-pounder loaded, fired. The shot cut straight across the rum runner's bow, the projectile splashing in the water a few feet away.

Rum Runner Halts

There was no halt; again the coast guard fired—the shot came lower. A third followed.

Then the rum runner captain ordered his engines reversed and surrendered

The capture, revenue officers said, was one of the heaviest since the advent of the rum feet off the Atlantic highlands.

The ownership of the speed boat had not been determined this morning. The boat will be confiscated, it was announced.

REFUSES MORE DELAY IN FLOGGING CASE

LAKE CITY, Fla., June 25.—Without allowing any argument, Judge M. A. McMullen today denied a motion of the defense to further delay the trial of W. F. Higginbotham, charged with first degree murder in connection with the death of Martin Mabert, who is said to have died from a flogging received in a Florida prison camp. The defense also made a motion to quash the indictment and another to disqualify J. B. Kelly, prosecuting attorney. Both, with several others, were denied.

FORMER GLENDALE MAN GOES TO PRISON

NEW YORK, June 25.—Donald Persch, 40, formerly of Glendale, Cal., was today sentenced from a year to a year and a half in Sing Sing when he pleaded guilty to one of five indictments charging forgery, filed against him in 1916. Persch is the son of wealthy parents and was a lawyer there. While in New York he met "Nicky" Arnstein and members of the famous "Gondorf" gang of wire tappers. In 1912, shortly after the gigantic Windsor Trust swindle, he was indicted with Arnstein and later turned state's evidence. In 1916 he fled after forfeiting bail on a forgery indictment. A month ago he was arrested in Chicago.

W. B. Kirk, En Route To Europe, Writes About His Visit In National Capital

GLENDALIANS will visit in Chicago and Washington, D. C., today with W. B. Kirk in his travel letter printed below. To former residents of Chicago and Washington it will be full of familiar names and places, and for those who have never visited there it will give a knowledge that will prepare one for such a visit. Mr. Kirk writes:

W. B. Kirk

"If the weather man were as good to Chicago at all seasons as he is right now, we would have a harder time luring its citizens to our genial clime.

"When we got there at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and were being whisked to the home of my long-time friend and former business partner, C. W. Taves, on N. Kenmore avenue, he was so ambitious to show us some of the improvements of the lake front with its fine new hotels and apartments that he nearly froze us before we arrived. The mercury was about 63, and the breeze off the lake was icy.

"I have never seen Chicago look so fresh and pretty as it did this time. Cool weather and rains have combined to produce the acme of spring just now. The thick, rich verdure of the trees and grass in the parks and yards, of the north side especially, is good for the eyes. Don't you wish we had a Lincoln park in Los Angeles?

"The filling-in and adornment of the lake shore goes on apace and bathing beaches are being extended all the time. How beautiful the lake and lagoons did look!

"With all its labor troubles and rotten political conditions, especially under its late disloyal mayor, the city is growing and building in every direction. The enterprise of its citizens is proverbial and its famous 'I Can' is known the world around. My friend, who is well posted in politics, tells me that the new Mayor Dever promises well, has the backing of the better element, and insofar as possible, is rooting out the grafters and supplanting them with good men.

Much Work to Do

"It is to be deeply regretted that the council on Tuesday, by a vote of 28 to 8, expressed itself 'in favor of the use of light wines and beers,' in resolution to congress. The stories of open drinking and easy purchase of booze in practically all hotels and cafes are probably exaggerated but they show that the 'Drys' still have plenty of work to do.

"Chicago may well be proud of its sky-scrapers and of its commerce. Los Angeles is not quite up to it in these respects, not yet. But its 'ad' of 'The All Year Club' in the morning Tribune looked good. It's on the job.

"In transportation facilities Chicagoans point with pride to the fact that no train runs through Chicago, they all terminate there. Also that a person can get to Chicago in a through sleeper without a change, from every important city in the United States. Unlike New York, it is a typical American city, located at its heart.

"Our stay of parts of two days with Mr. Taves and his wife and daughter, was most enjoyable and all regretted that we couldn't stay longer.

Reach Washington

"The weather warmed on Thursday, as we left, and it was a little cloudy and humid through Indiana and Ohio on our way to Washington. We were on the new train of the Penn. R. R. called the 'Washington-Broadway Limited,' leaving Chicago at 1 p. m. and reaching at 9 a. m., just nineteen hours at an average of forty-four miles per hour.

"Our beloved Capitol City is at its best also. From the time you roll into its magnificent Union station till you take your departure from it, you feel that your country has a national headquarters which is worthy of its greatness. It is a fine city, the contrast of the old-style with the modern, even in adjoining buildings not detracting from its beauty.

"Many of you have seen it I know, but with me you will be glad to recall the pride you felt when you first beheld the Capitol in its majestic outlines. "The Monument," the White House, and all the government buildings, embassies, homes of celebrated public characters and the innumerable statues.

"As the guide on our sight-seeing trips tries to point out the various things of interest as the car passes along, he is surely 'some busy boy', because nearly every building in the close-in sections is of interest.

Recall Early Days

"The quaint old buildings in Georgetown, which, though part of the real city, refuses to be called West Washington, are vivid re-

PROHIBITION IS HERE TO STAY, SAYS HARDING

Individual States of Union Must Enforce Dry Laws Or U. S. Will Act

By GEO. R. HOLMES
For International News Service

DENVER, June 25.—President Harding waded into the prohibition situation without gloves here today and in by far the most forceful speech he has ever delivered on this controversial subject, he declared that prohibition in the United States has come to stay, that people might as well make up their minds to it, and that it is up to the individual states and local authorities to enforce it.

If the states fail in this moral and constitutional duty to the federal government, he warned, then the government, at great expense, will be compelled to create a national police authority that in the end will severely injure state sovereignty and eventually menace the well being of the republic. Moreover, he served notice on the wets within his own party that there would be no wet plank in the Republican platform next year and he predicted also that there will be none in the Democratic platform.

"I venture to predict," said Mr. Harding, "that neither of the great parties will see the time, within the lives of any who are now voting citizens, when it will declare openly for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Makes Hot Reply

"I am convinced, too, that whatever changes may be made (in the Volstead law) will represent the sincere purpose of effective enforcement, rather than moderation of the general policy."

The president replied in hot fashion to Governor Al Smith of New York, whose approval of the repeal of the state enforcement law in New York was based primarily upon the sovereign right of an individual state to co-operate with the government or not, as it choose.

Instead of upholding state rights, Mr. Harding declared, such action represented "complete negation of state rights."

"It is a curious illustration of loose thinking," said the president, mentioning no names, "that some people have proposed, as a means to protecting the fullest rights of the states, that the states should abandon their part in enforcing prohibition.

"That means simply an invitation to the federal government to exercise powers which should be exercised by the states.

Denies Contention

"Instead of being an assertion of states' rights, it is an abandonment of them, it is an abdication; it amounts to a confession by the state that it does not choose to govern itself but prefers to turn the task, or a considerable part of it, over to federal authority. There could be no more complete negation of states' rights."

President Harding flatly denied the contention advanced by Governor Smith and a few other state executives that responsibility for enforcing the Volstead law rests with Washington.

"The fact is quite the contrary," Mr. Harding asserted. "The federal government is not equipped with the instrumentalities to make enforcement locally effective. It does not maintain either a police or a judicial establishment adequate to or designed for such a task."

The federal government ought to perform only those functions in connection with enforcement which are within its proper prov-

More Than Eight Killed In N. Y. Train Accident

NEW YORK, June 25.—Eight bodies had been recovered this afternoon from the wreckage of the coaches of a two-car Brooklyn Rapid Transit elevated train that plunged from its tracks to the street in Brooklyn, burying two automobiles and their occupants as they crashed to the pavement. Another body could be seen in the tangled mass of wood and iron of the splintered cars, and it was feared that the death list would mount still higher.

Nearly forty persons were injured, some so seriously that they may die.

Fully seventy-five persons, principally women and children, bound from Brooklyn to New Yory City, were in the train.

Of the eight bodies recovered four were women, three girls and one aged man.

Witnesses of the crash of the cars from the elevated tracks, many feet above the street, said two automobiles were crushed by the falling cars. They did not observe how many persons were in the machines.

Mayor John F. Hylan, informed of the accident, rushed to the scene in an automobile and personally directed the rescue work.

Screams of the penned up victims as the cars fell, and the wails and terrified cries of the injured were heard for blocks. Thousands gathered about the scene.

After a quick examination, Mayor Hylan said the wreck apparently was caused by a decayed tie which permitted the rails to sag under the weight of the cars and over-balanced them.

Three Men, Three Women Make Mt. Lassen Ascent

REDDING, Cal., June 25. — News of a remarkable ascent of Mount Lassen, only "live" volcano in the United States, by a party of three women and three men reached here today with the return of the tired but proud party.

It appeared to be a foolhardy feat in the face of the storm of Saturday which left a foot of snow on the peak. It was rendered all the more dangerous by the presence in the party of the three young girls.

Miss Breuda Haller, Miss Henrietta Schath and Miss Phyrne Lorenz were the three young Burlingame society girls who made the ascent. Dr. J. H. Lorenz and Frank Lorenz of Burlingame and Cecil Smith of Redding were the men in the party.

They left Viola afoot Sunday morning, each provided with Alpine stocks. They arrived at the crater at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The guide reported the society girls "scaled the mountainside like goats." The ascent was replete with many thrilling features.

After spending an hour at the craters where they made coffee over a steaming fumarole, the descent was made in rapid time, particularly when sliding down snowy slopes. The party reached here early today.

ince, the president said. He enumerated the duties of the federal government as: Supervision of international commerce, importation and exportation of liquors; collection of federal revenue and prevention of smuggling. But the business of local enforcement, he insisted, belongs to the state and local authorities and should be executed by them in the same sincerity and good faith that all other laws are enforced.

Support by Public

"The national policy ought to be supported by public opinion and the administrative machinery of the whole country," he continued. "The country and the nation will not permit the law of the land to become a mere word."

"The issue is fast becoming recognized," he went on, "not as an issue between wets and drys, not a question between those who believe in prohibition, and those who do not; not a contention between those who drink and those who do not; it is fast being raised above all that, to recognition of an issue of whether the laws of this country can and will be enforced.

"So far as the federal government is concerned, and I am very sure also, so far as concerns the very great majority of state governments, it will be enforced. A gratifying, indeed amazing progress has been made in the last few years toward better enforcement."

The president had nothing but scorn and criticism for those officials who, charged with enforcement of the law, violate it themselves with impunity.

do road to the west side of the Southern Pacific right of way near the pumping plant.

A southbound train was approaching, but Mr. Evans and young Bulette noticed that they had plenty of time to cross the track before it passed. They did so, and, after the train had passed, they looked across the track and saw Mr. Huntley's horse without a rider. They retraced their horses' steps and found Mr. Huntley lying upon the ground about 100 feet east of the right of way.

Horse Frightened

According to an account of the accident given by Mr. Huntley, his horse, which had been bought from a private owner at Sunland, and was supposed to be gentle, had become frightened at the approaching train and had reared up, throwing him off the saddle. The horse had then slipped and fallen for a moment on Mr. Huntley.

At the hospital it was found that Mr. Huntley had received a broken pelvic bone, which had punctured the intestine, necessitating a major operation. He also received other serious internal injuries that retarded his recovery and made a second operation imperative a week ago Saturday.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Entitled

Christian Science: God's Revelation Of Spiritual Healing

by

JUDGE FREDERICK C. HILL, C.S.
Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Christian Science is, as its name implies, essentially Christian, and its practice being predicated upon absolute laws, it brings healing from sickness and deliverance from sin.

There is within the so-called human mind a fixed and abiding conviction that it is legitimate to be healthy and happy. This inherent conviction is evidence per se of the fact that health and happiness is the normal state of being. This desirable end can be accomplished only through right, scientific thinking: hence it must be perfectly clear that Christian Scientists, looking toward the idealistic or spiritual, are concerned about the mental rather than the outward or material.

BIBLE REVELATION

I have assured you that this Science is essentially Christian. This being the case, Christian Science, as a great religious movement, must be based upon a revelation of the teachings and practical truths presented in the Bible. Lest there be confusion in the thought of those who have never investigated this subject, I assure you at the outset that Christian Scientists use for their study and in all their church services one Bible authority, that of the King James Version of the Old and the New Testaments. There are many religious denominations and bodies, each claiming to teach and practice the Christian religion; each claiming the Bible as authority for creed and doctrine, and each claiming salvation as the desired goal. There are wide and seemingly irreconcilable differences of opinion among these Christian bodies and an utter disagreement as to the fundamentals of salvation. There is but one conclusion to be drawn: individuals have ceased to do the one natural, normal thing—that is, have ceased to think spiritually and have accepted as facts many conclusions which are not true. As a natural consequence confusion follows, as that which is untrue can never be made the foundation for that which is enduring and true. At this point it is well to understand that there is one absolute truth about everything, and regardless of one's sincerity in believing otherwise, that truth remains infallible and undisturbed, for nothing in human belief can ever change that which is absolutely true.

THE DISCOVERER AND THE DISCOVERY

Christian Science as it is presented to you and to me came through the discovery by Mary Baker Eddy of the operation of absolute, fixed spiritual law. In an impartial investigation of Christian Science it is desirable, in fact quite essential, to know somewhat of its Discoverer and Founder. I feel quite safe in assuming that my early experience in the investigation of this subject is similar to yours. My first impulse was to inquire, "Who is Mrs. Eddy? What did she discover and found?" The answer to these questions is simple and helpful. Mrs. Eddy was a devout and lovable New England woman, deeply interested in the Bible. Early in childhood she displayed a keen perception of the underlying truths contained in Bible narratives. Through her research and study of the Bible she noted that perfect trust and confidence in God's laws were followed by permanent and fixed results, and that blessing and healing were part and parcel of His infinite plan. She concluded that God governs His universe, His creation, through infinite intelligence or absolute law, and that this law, being spiritual, could be understood and applied, and that when so applied renders null and void the false beliefs of law inherent in the so-called human mind. She concluded that this law could be definitely known and stated, and was as fixed and unfailing as its divine Principle. She further concluded that since disease has no more authority than sin it could be cured and health restored to the body in exactly the same manner and with the same certainty of results as sin could be destroyed. During her investigation an injury caused by an accident led her to discover the spiritual law by which she was healed herself; and later, upon her restoration to health, she applied the same law to the relief and healing of others. In the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p 107), Mrs. Eddy says: "In the year 1866, I discovered the Christ Science or divine laws of Life, Truth, and Love, and named my discovery Christian Science." She had discovered the absolute, fixed and eternal laws of God and had proved that they are present and operative, and can be relied upon to heal the sick as they did in the time of Jesus. She found these laws "compassionate, helpful, and spiritual" and named them "Christian" (Retrospection and Introspection, p. 25); and because they constitute the absolute laws of God, are available, and can be demonstrated, she named them "Science." Hence, Mrs. Eddy discovered and proved the divine laws of Spirit, the laws of Life, Truth and Love. After this discovery she subjected it to proof, and being convinced of the healing and redeeming ministrations of these spiritual laws, she determined to give to the world the benefit of her observation and discovery. Accordingly she wrote and published "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and designated it the Christian Science textbook. The reading and study of this book, in connection with the Bible, has brought health and healing to many, and is indeed a key to God's inspired Word, the Bible.

Regardless of conflicting reports, I make this positive and emphatic declaration of fact: Mary Baker Eddy is the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science and has been so decreed by our courts.

After her discovery, Mrs. Eddy founded a church, "designed to commemorate the word and works of our Master, which should reinstate primitive Christianity and its lost element of healing." So she states in the Manual (p. 17). That Church, founded by her is The Mother Church in Boston; and the Church whose hospitality you are now enjoying is an authorized branch of The Mother Church.

Christian Scientists are grateful to Mrs. Eddy for her years of devotion in reestablishing practical Christianity and its lost healing art. They love her in the true spiritual sense, but do not worship or deify her. They are engaged in perpetuating and applying her discovery to the needs of humanity. Because she loved God and because she also loved those who apparently did not love her, Christian Scientists are earnestly striving to make practical her saying, "A genuine Christian Scientist loves Protestant and Catholic, D. D. and M. D.,—loves all who love God, good; and he loves his enemies" (Miscellany, p. 4).

REALITY IS BASIC

It will early be discovered that Christian Science emphasizes the final destruction of sin and the healing of bodily infirmity. Some of our religious friends have offered the criticism that Christian Scientists make too much of the healing element. At no time does the human mind part with cherished beliefs or relinquish traditional claims until proof, clear and positive, has been presented showing that there is a better way. It is not surprising, therefore, that after material methods have failed and Christian Science treatment has restored health and happiness to the individual, very much should be thought and made of the healing element. In fact, all Christian Science practice is healing in character whether it is applied to bodily afflictions or to other forms of discord. The healing of bodily ailments by prayer is the "eye opener" to the sick and is positive and indisputable proof that matter is submitting to spiritual law. Likewise the false beliefs which material man calls law cease to govern and bind him in proportion to his spiritual discernment. It is natural in the consideration of this important matter that questions should come to us. I have asked myself many times: Is there an ideal, basic state of being? If so, how may I know this ideal state? How may I become conscious of the way of escape from the baneful effects of apparent disease and disaster? Rightly to understand and draw proper conclusions there must be a clear discernment between that which is absolutely real and basic and that which, to the senses, seems to be real and is believed by the human mind to be such.

Common experience teaches us that we are consciously or otherwise governed by and subject to fixed laws. These laws operate in an impartial, uniform manner, regardless of our understanding or recognition of them. The individual who rejects their operation or who disputes their authority, through ignorance or otherwise, pays the penalty for such infraction in proportion to the magnitude of the offense. The laws of gravitation, mathematics, harmony, and the laws regulating individuals in society operate uniformly and effectively, regardless of the beliefs of those who are uninstructed or who for some reason refuse to recognize and accept their supreme authority. For example, a score of individuals selected from the ordinary rank and file of humanity will agree that a ball forced into the air will return to the earth, or that any object projected forward over Niagara Falls will descend to the bottom of Niagara River. When asked why these results are manifest a very large proportion of these individuals can give no explanation whatever of the law involved. Some may have a very vague and uncertain belief, not based upon any scientific fact, that the result is due to some force from above. Quite likely one alone can explain the theory of the operation of gravitation. During all this time gravitation is operating uniformly undisturbed by ignorance or false belief, and the earth and the planets respond to its force just the same. False belief, lack of any belief in or knowledge of gravitation, has not affected its operation. In the so-called material universe the law of gravitation is basic, fundamental, and is there to be understood and intelligently utilized by man. I am sure a personal experience may be helpful in further explaining the distinction between the real and that which is believed to be real.

Some years ago I presented at a bank a ten-dollar bill, a silver certificate. The usual words, "This certifies that there has been deposited in the Treasury of the United States of America, ten silver dollars, payable to the bearer on demand," were printed in the usual type across the face of this bill. I believed this bill to be genuine and, in the light of past experience, I had a right to expect that the paying teller of the bank would at once count out to me ten silver dollars or their equivalent in exchange for this bill. However, contrary to my expectations, in a very short period of time the teller returned the same bill to me with the word "counterfeit" stamped in large red letters across its face. In a moment of time and without any effort on my part the status of that bill became apparent. I no longer looked upon it as a genuine medium of exchange. It represented nothing and was nothing. It was merely a counterfeit. I no longer expected ten dollars in exchange; I was absolutely convinced that no person would ever be deceived again by that particular bill. My belief in its value was sincere but erroneous. It had escaped detection perhaps many times, yet from first to last it represented nothing, was a counterfeit, and needed but the trained and skillful knowledge of that paying teller and a little red ink to destroy forever its fictitious value. Through all this experience there was a real, genuine silver certificate in circulation and its value remained absolute and undisturbed. The sincere belief of every person in the world could not make a genuine bill out of that counterfeit. The basic, fundamental value was not there. That bill was but the visible evidence of the counterfeit mind which had produced it, and which, until detected, endowed it with its own fictitious value.

GOOD AND EVIL MENTAL

In the consideration of Christian Science it is absolutely essential to understand the nature of good and evil and to be able to distinguish between that which is intrinsically good and that which presents merely the appearance of good.

Human laws have been devised for the protection of individuals as units in the commonwealth. Some of these laws are of ancient origin; so much so that mankind has no knowledge of their source except that they are founded upon usages and customs, which have prevailed so long that the "memory of man runneth not to the contrary." These laws, like all others, are based upon the theory that there is a supreme, sovereign power, within the state, commanding that which is right and prohibiting that which is wrong. It should be remembered that these laws have been formulated by the human desire to rise above the chaotic condition of no law, and many of them are profound examples of the human attempt to pattern the decrees of infinite, divine justice. There is a well-defined and recognized rule or law which prevails in most civilized countries that every individual is presumed to be innocent of any wrongdoing until proved guilty by competent evidence beyond every reasonable doubt. This presumption is an essential and substantial part of the law of the land, and it is the duty of courts and juries to maintain this presumption of innocence up to the very moment that it is overcome by the evidence. So strong is this presumption of innocence that the complaint, information, or indictment against an individual can never be used in and of itself to contradict or overcome this inherent presumption with which every individual is clothed. It is further a presumption of law that every one is honest, truthful, and law-abiding until the contrary is shown. Also the presumption of normality in mind and body prevails, and our courts guard very jealously these wise and humane presumptions. Notwithstanding, human observation and experience present evidences of crime unchecked. Moral delinquency seems to run riot; dishonesty, untruthfulness, and infirmity in mind and body would wholly eclipse the desirable ends to be attained. Christian Scientists freely admit that such conditions of mind and body should not exist among Christian people. Common observation will convince any rational person that much confusion is due to the lack of absolute knowledge regarding the sources of good and evil. Christian Scientists do not close their eyes to these apparently alarming conditions. Indeed, they are wide awake to the real cause, and are doing the only thing that can be done to destroy these false beliefs and to maintain these humane presumptions, not merely in theory but by making them real, enduring, basic laws in fact. Christian Science declares in no uncertain manner that God is the source of all good and that the human, the carnal, mind is the procuring cause of all evil. It presents logical, irrefutable proof that man lives by divine decree, and that the Scriptural text, "In him we live, and move, and have our being" declares the real status of man, and not merely an emotional theory. It declares emphatically that evil is not a person, place, or thing; that it is not a cause or creator, and that there is no realm or dominion over which evil is the sovereign power. In fact, it denies that evil has any power except such as it assumes in human belief, and it then destroys this assumed power by overcoming the human mind with the divine Mind.

THE WORSHIP OF THE ONE TRUE GOD

Christian Science is a religion and has been so decreed by the courts of our land. Its practice involves obedience to the first great commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." Its keynote is expressed in the words of the Master, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like unto it, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Its paramount object is worship—the worship of the one true God. Through this worship healing is experienced. It will be apparent that all true worship must rest for an enduring foundation upon the right concept of God. The wrong concept of God lays the foundation for the superstructure of false belief and idolatry. Mere human belief about God can never be substituted for, nor urged in support of, His real nature. To the carnal mind, essentially material, God appears as a magnified human being — a super-human man. This conception of His nature and character has prevailed almost universally for centuries, as evidenced by an illustration of "The Heavenly Father and the Evil One" in Faust. In this illustration, God is portrayed as a large, old man, with a long, white beard, seated upon an elevated throne. Long flowing robes cover His body, and in His right hand is a large scepter. His countenance is stern and commanding and there is no evidence of compassion of love in His appearance. It is not reasonable to conclude that such a concept of God could possibly be conducive to true worship or that such a superhuman creature could possibly occupy all space and could hear and answer millions of conflicting human prayers and petitions. Such belief borders upon the ridiculous, and yet many individuals are sincerely holding in thought to such a concept of God and are worshiping that concept of Him. Such practice is idolatry, pure and simple. The fact that there are so many differing religious creeds and beliefs is evidence of gross ignorance and confusion as to the real nature of God. The whole human family will never be united in one brotherhood until there is a common recognition and worship of Him in His true nature and character.

Christian Science presents to you the conception of God as "infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love" (Science and Health, p. 465). It presents nothing about Him save that which is supported and sustained by Bible authority and which is rational and comforting. When it is perceived that God is infinite, divine Mind it at once becomes apparent that like produces like, hence His creation must of necessity be mental and not material. God must be sought and found, if at all, through the avenue of divine Mind, and not in or through matter. It then becomes clear that the real man whom God pronounced good lives, moves, and has his being in Mind, and is a spiritual, not a material being; and because he is an idea in Mind he can and does express the qualities of that divine Mind which created him. This fact accounts for his ability to think. Even though mortals have a very faulty and imperfect knowledge of the operation of Mind, and believe that thoughts have their origin in the human brain, yet thought existed before and independently of brain tissue and emanates from the one Mind, God. This conclusion is further supported by the fact that all mortals as infants are fully equipped with brain tissue. No one, however, will seriously contend that an infant exercises the functions of rational thinking. In our more advanced experience as thinkers the material elements of the brain remain the same. Thought, however, unfolds, exands, and develops, eliciting the conclusion that the brain, as matter, has no inherent intelligence and is not the source of mental action.

God is also defined as infinite Love. This term expresses His divine nature and His compassionate relation to His children. This divine nature accounts for His infinite goodness and His watchful, protecting care. Since God is infinite Love, this fact implies infinite goodness; and since He possesses all power, all presence, and all knowledge, it follows as a necessary conclusion that all manifestations of Him must partake of His goodness. Constituted authority, therefore, reposes in Him and is essentially good. From this argument it is apparent that there being no good in sin, sickness, or death, God is not the author of them, and, from His very nature, could not have a knowledge of them. Such a knowledge would imply the elements of destruction, which are no part of good and would therefore be the very opposite of infinite Life. If that which is evil and destructive does not emanate from God, from whence does it spring and from what source does it derive its seeming power? Paul says, "The carnal mind is enmity against God." Interpreted in the light of our definition that God is infinite Mind, the saying becomes clear that evil and all destructive elements have their supposititious source in the "carnal," human mind, and depend upon that so-called mind for all that they assume to be. Now, the mortal mind is a counterfeit, an erroneous belief; it is enmity against the one true Mind, God.

God is also defined as infinite Principle, and Christian Scientists worship Him as such. When it is understood that there is but one omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent cause, embracing within itself all wisdom, power, truth, law, order, and perfection, it will be clearly apparent that the term "Principle" is descriptive of the exact nature of the one absolute God. It will be observed that divine Principle is descriptive of the one perfect, unchangeable, and eternal cause. This eternal cause is Life, Truth, and Love, and as we apprehend more of the divine nature, we express in human experience a higher and a better understanding of these divine qualities. The verdict of the human senses, however, does not seem to support this happy and desirable state. The human mind, educated and instructed by processes of erroneous thinking, draws conclusions of death rather than of eternal Life; conceives of man as subject to birth, maturity, and decay, and concludes that all is mortal—subject to death—as the word implies. In like manner, the human mind believes a lie rather than the truth, and envy, hatred, and revenge are substituted for Love. All these erroneous conclusions, if retained in consciousness, have but one ultimate result. Death and destruction follow. It is wholly outside the range even of the most material logic to conceive of God, who is infinite Life and the creator of all that is good, as being the author of death and destruction, or to suppose that infinite Truth and Love could possibly be responsible for any state of being, pregnant with evils, human delinquencies, and malicious purposes. To limit or circumscribe God in any degree invites disaster at the outset. It would destroy His infinite nature and deprive Him of His omnipotence, omniscience, and omnipresence. Such a god could not and does not exist, and the religionist who in his thought defies matter, or who would take from God's infinite nature one of His qualities and bestow it upon some human belief, is an idolater and a worshiper of false gods, as truly as the children of Israel became such by bowing down to a golden calf, or as were the prophets and followers of Baal.

THE NEED OF SALVATION

We have heretofore seen that the so-called human mind believes itself to be a creator and seeks ways and means of perpetuating itself as well as of pursuing pleasure and happiness in matter. Its quest for perpetual existence and pleasure is disappointing, for, as we have seen, this mind conceives of death as the ultimate of all things. Some plan must be devised by this assumed creator to save its creature from the dire effects of its own mortality. Accordingly, this erroneous belief proceeds to devise a speculative and nebulous place somewhere in space called heaven, as well as an opposite place called hell, with a full code of regulations governing admission to each. Notwithstanding death is dissolution, destruction, yet this carnal mind, through some vague process of reasoning, would make death the entrance to heaven and hell and would have those who, perhaps through fear, have been faithful to its decrees, ushered into heaven, and have conferred upon them eternal life as a reward of merit, and, likewise, would have those who reject its plan ushered into eternal destruction as punishment. My friends, there is no such heaven and there is no such hell. The Bible plainly declares that the kingdom of heaven is within you; and it is reasonable to conclude that if the kingdom of heaven is a state of consciousness in divine Mind, its opposite, hell, must also be found in the realm of mortal mind. In the exercise of all our mental faculties, as rational individuals, we must conclude that heaven is a condition of consciousness, and is to be sought and attained here and now, and that the only means at our command by which we may become conscious of its dwelling within us is by the process of right thinking. It is not gained merely as a future reward of merit, in some habitation located by human metes and bounds. It is a real, vital condition of thought and can be experienced and enjoyed at once in proportion to the illumination of the divine Mind shining in human consciousness. Adopting the same line of argument, we conclude that a wrong mental state induces fear and other erroneous beliefs, and establishes in human consciousness the opposite of heaven—torment and hell. It is common observation that sometimes mortals are as much in a state of torment and woe—utterly lost—as though they were actually being consumed by the traditional eternal fires of hell; and there is no escape, no deliverance from this state of torment except through the avenues of Right mental action and the destruction of the erroneous beliefs which have induced this state of torment. No further argument is necessary to convince the most skeptical individual that the so-called human mind, the producing and procuring cause of all human discord and misery, is sorely in need of salvation; and we shall hope to satisfy your thought that Christian Science is the revelation of that salvation.

CHRIST JESUS—THE WAY-SHOWER

We have tired to bring your attention thus far to the fact that the carnal mind, through its erroneous beliefs, has utterly failed to comprehend the true nature of God and His plan of salvation. It must be evident then, that a mortal man, the creature of the carnal mind, is lost and without hope unless there is some rational and appreciable way by which he may renounce these errors and be healed of his false beliefs. The human mind tries to endow matter with life, and there is a constant endeavor to preserve and perpetuate this concept of life in the body. Jesus said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly," and, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. This is Scriptural authority for concluding that the mission of Jesus was to bring to light a higher and better sense of life, and that men should know and understand eternal Life through the knowledge of God, and His son, Christ Jesus. Christian Science proclaims Christ Jesus as the Way-shower in a practical manner by giving heed to his words and works and by repeating in human experience many of the signs and wonders which he said should follow them who believe on him. In fact, as he healed the sick, overcame sin, and raised the dead, leaving a commandment that his followers should do likewise, Christian Scientists are humbly engaged in this healing ministry. They freely admit that the highest desirable results have not yet been attained and that human discords have not been entirely overcome. The sincere Christian Scientist, however, finds much joy in the practice of the precepts of the Master and in the contemplation of the ultimate success to be attained, and he is earnestly striving to reach the high goal set by Christ Jesus, when he said, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HEALING

There is a very erroneous and un-Christian belief ignorantly entertained by many concerning the attitude of Christian Scientists toward the experiences called sickness and death. The opinion is often erroneously entertained that they are unmindful of these distressing human conditions and that they offer no relief to those who unfortunately suffer from these beliefs. Nothing could be farther from the truth. They freely admit that these conditions call for the highest degree of human compassion, and they are proving their usefulness and competency by supplying humanitarian compassion in a most effectual Christian manner. They are healing sickness, sorrow, and dire distress in the most effectual way; in fact, they are doing it in the only way that holds out a ray of hope or promise for the final deliverance from these evils. They freely admit that many of those who are engaged in other modes of healing are performing noble service and are to be commended for this service and for their deeds of deep devotion in trying to relieve human suffering. They further admit that the field for service is a large one that there should be no conflict between those who in true sincerity engage in the practice of the "healing art." Likewise, there should be due consideration and real Christian charity for all those who entertain opposing views; and Christian Scientists cheerfully accord to every individual the full liberty of conscience in determining the particular mode or system which, from his viewpoint, will best promote his happiness. Christian Scientists, of course, do not agree with those who adopt the theory that there is something wrong with matter and therefore something material must be administered to restore harmonious action. They believe that the intelligent and right way is to ascertain the offending mental cause and to remove it. They know that the procuring cause is mental, and they seek to correct that wrong mental condition by substituting therefor the right mental status. Now this is a safe, orderly procedure and produces gratifying results. They do not lay one straw in the way of those who hold differing opinions and they freely accord to them the full right to drug, cut, pull, beat, and pound the poor human body, and do the hundred and one other things which, according to their material theories, are necessary in order to arouse this body to intelligent, normal activity, providing always the one possessing that body consents to and desires such treatment. Would it seem strange that Christian Scientists shoud expect others to exercise the same courtesy towards them, or that they should expect to be allowed the same freedom of choice?

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE TREATMENT—PRAYER

A Christian Science treatment is a conscientious effort based upon a sincere desire to bring into human experience "the enduring, the good, and the true" (Science and Health, p. 261) so that by the renewing of the mind it can be proved what is that "perfect will of God." In other words, the reformation of the sinner and the healing of the sick is but proof that divine Principle, God, is present and available, and is, as we have heretofore seen, Immanuel, or God with us. This happy and desirable mental condition is established through the medium of prayer. There is great lack of understanding among Christian people as to what constitutes true prayer. This lack of absolute knowedge is the procuring cause of much error, and accounts for the erroneous belief that Christian Scientists do not pray. Such belief has no foundation in fact. They pray continually and understandingly, and the fruits of their prayers are rich blessings to humanity. It must be remembered, however, that in their prayers they do not supplicate God to conform His will to theirs or "to change His infinite design." Neither do they charge Him with human delinquencies; and, as a matter of course, they do not petition Him to remedy or correct that which He has not created. They do pray to Him from the standpoint of sincere desire and "absolute faith that all things are possible to God" (Science and Health, p. 1); and such prayer is answered by driving out of human consciousness the diseased, erroneous images of thought and letting in the light of God's man created in His image and likeness. In other words, the Christian Science practitioner, through the medium of prayer, is establishing a positive connection with the divine Mind.

In the practice of medicine and surgery the successful physician first makes an intelligent diagnosis of his patient's case. In fact, modern medicine is laying more stress upon successful diagnosis than it is upon the administration of a remedy. This fact is significant: it indicates that the matter physician recognizes the cause of the ailment as of more importance than the method of treatment. We certainly will agree with our friends in this particular, and we frankly admit that they are proceeding in the right direction. If they follow our leading they will be compelled to adopt our conclusion as to the initial cause of disease being mental; and of course we will be glad to recommend to them the One who, as the psalmist declares, "healeth all thy diseases." As the successful physician makes his physical diagnosis, so the Christian Science practitioner is ever on the alert and actively engaged in discovering the mental status of his patient. Some of the most alarming physical conditions quickly yield to Christian Science treatment when fear, self-pity, self-love, self-condemnation, malice, hatred, revenge, and other secret, hypnotic, and mesmeric influences are uncovered and destroyed. Let me give you an illustration.

On the fertile prairies of Illinois lives a highly respected and prosperous farmer. His wife and daughter constitute his family. Through years of honest thrift this man has accumulated a fortune. His farm lands are extensive and his check passes without limitation at the bank. The farmer was reared and his life has been spent in a Christian home. He is a steadfast, conscientious believer, according to his understanding, in the efficacy of the Bible truths. He has made a manly effort to live his religious convictions and to be worthy of the name of a Christian. The wife, likewise, is possessed of all the grace and charm incident to a true, noble woman. Like her husband, she has been surrounded by religious influence all her life, and long before becoming a wife and mother united with the little band of workers in the little village church. The Bible has been her companion, and with the establishment of a home she and her husband have ever remembered the "family altar" and have kept it sacred. The other member of this household is an only daughter, a charming, lovely young girl just coming into womanhood. Thus far the surroundings furnish evidence for the conclusion that this was an ideal home. One thing, however, was lacking. This daghter was an invalid—decreed by certain so-called laws of heredity to be incurable. Early in her young life the best approved material remedies were applied without success. The family physician frankly admitted his inability to cure her. The specialist applied his technical knowledge and skill without success. The schools and institutions for medical research reviewed her affliction. The decision was the same—incurable. After these successive failures there remained one hope. Religion had been a vital force in this family and the Bible promises had never heretofore failed them. Why should not this daughter be healed by the same power of God that raised the daughter of Jairus from the dead? These parents at once applied to their faithful pastor; and it should be frankly admitted that no greater tribute can be paid to the Christian ministry than the statement that the efforts of this pastor were faithfully and conscientiously given in the light of his understanding, in the effort to heal this daughter. After weeks of patient endeavor her condition remained unchanged and the family sorrowfully accepted the conclusion that her case was incurable and sought to be reconciled to the belief that "God moves in a mysterious way."

At this time Christian Science came to their attention. After many struggles with the usual objections against it, the parents renounced all objections, and "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Eddy and a Christian Science practitioner were secured. From the start her improvement was rapid and pronounced. At the moment, however, when the fondest hopes of the parents and daughter seemed about to be realized, her improvement apparently ceased; her case became stationary and, while improved, she was not healed. Having been convinced that her procedure was right the daughter continued therein faithfully and courageously, and over and over again searched her consciousness to discover the subtle, hindering cause. Through her study of Christian Science she had grasped one of its basic teachings, that the cause of all disease is mental and not material, and upon a self-examination she discovered a deep sense of fear, doubt, self-pity, and resentment. She concluded that these were the elements binding her and preventing her full recovery, and she further discovered that her father and mother were entertaining exactly these same erroneous beliefs. Upon this discovery the daughter and parents set about to intelligently and effectively correct their wrong mental action, and in due time these parents were healed of many of their erroneous conclusions regarding Christian Science, and in the course of further study, development, and understanding the erroneous beliefs binding this young girl were destroyed, and she was permanently and completely healed through Christian Science and restored to happiness and harmony.

I bring this illustration to your attention in order that you may see and understand the baneful efects of ignorant, sympathetic mesmerism, operating unchecked and unconsciously under the guise of pity, remorse, or self-condemnation. I want you to understand that, regardless of motives,—the well-meaning or the sincerity back of and prompting such beliefs,—they are erroneous and dangerous, and constitute a serious menace to successful healing until they are recognized and destroyed. You may inquire of me, "Are you sure that Christian Science heals?" I hold no mere abstract opinion on that subject, and I answer it positively and directly. I know that it heals, and I bear public testimony to the fact that years ago through Christian Science treatment I was healed of the same serious disorder which had taken my mother, a sister, and two brothers—the entire family except my father—after all material remedies had failed both them and me. The Christian Science periodicals contain testimonies of healing, and if you will attend a Wednesday evening meeting in any Christian Science church or society throughout the world you will hear many testimonies equally authentic and perhaps even more convincing than mine.

THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES

In 1854, Cyrus W. Field, a merchant of New York city, conceived the idea of binding Europe to America by means of a submarine cable, through which messages between the two countries could be exchanged. Upon announcement of his proposed project, he was at once hailed as a madman and as one fit for commitment to an asylum. After three unsuccessful attempts, on July 27, 1866, he successfully tied the two continents by a cable, which endures to this day. This success demonstrated the final linking of every nation of the world, and at this time there are hundreds and thousands of miles of submarine cable connecting every habitable part of the globe. This achievement is truly a noble and inspiring monument to the vision of Cyrus Field.

In November, 1921, through the establishment of electric circuits and by means of an invention known as the loud speaking amplifier, the voice of the President of the United States, while delivering an address in Arlington, was simultaneously heard and recognized by fifteen thousand people in Madison Square Garden in New York city, and by twenty-seven thousand people on the Pacific Coast, a distance of thirty-seven hundred miles. Since that time, in April, 1922, through further invention, the human voice was broadcasted through space, hundreds and thousands of miles without wire or cable, with just a sending and receiving instrument in perfect adjustment. Thus, through its own invention, the human mind has eliminated two of its most cherished elements,—that of time and space. The period of time embraced between the transmission by a "runner" of the first message on a piece of crude bark to the instantaneous broadcasting of the human voice over hundreds of miles without wire or cable, is rich in advancement and progress. These are inspiring monuments to the achievements of mankind. The law governing the latest invention was just as available at the time that the crude bark was used and during all the intervening years as it was in April, 1922. The human mind, however, required years of education and unfoldment before it could relinquish the use of the bark, the wire, and the cable. Thought, however, was developing and unfolding, and in due time this law, awaiting a discoverer, was brought to light.

Likewise, in the year 1866, Mrs. Eddy discovered Christian Science, the Christ-cure. Her undertakings were more revolutionary and more in advance of the times than those of Field. Like him, however, when apparently forsaken by friends and acquaintances, she pressed on, proving each new step, until finally she gave to the world a restatement of primitive Christianity, binding it together by her statement of spiritual law more effectively than does the submarine cable. As the law of the radio broadcasting was real and available, likewise the laws of spiritual healing have always been real, awaiting a discoverer to make them available for present use. Hundreds of years of idolatry and false belief had obscured these laws until revealed and unfolded in the receptive thought of Mary Baker Eddy, and restated by her in Christian Science.

In the achievements of Mary Baker Eddy may we not see more than simply the founding and establishing of a great organization? May we not see the shadow of that time when the whole "earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea"?

May we not see in the successes achieved by the instantaneous broadcasting of the human voice our close approach to the time when the operation of spiritual law shall appear to human consciousness as natural and as normal as the manifestations of material law now seem—the time spoken of by the psalmist when he said, "He spake, and it was done"?

In conclusion, I want to recommend an earnest, conscientious endeavor on the part of every one of my hearers to apply the Christ-healing as taught and practiced in Christian Science to the disord, misery, sin, and unholy conditions in human experience. I know that this endeavor will bless you, and in proportion as you understandingly destroy one element of evil in your own consciousness you are helping to destroy it for the whole world. I know of no better concluding thought to leave with you than that contained within the following admonition from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 495): "When the illusion of sickness or sin tempts you, cling steadfastly to God and His idea. Allow nothing but His likeness to abide in your thought. Let neither fear nor doubt overshadow your clear sense and calm trust, that the recognition of life harmonious—as Life eternally is—can destroy any painful sense of, or belief in, that which Life is not. Let Christian Science, instead of corporeal sense, support your understanding of being, and this understanding will supplant error with Truth, replace mortality with immortality, and silence discord with harmony."

Mark Twain Story On Glendale Screen

"A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" is the feature now showing at the Glendale Theatre. The film is a Fox product and has made a great popular hit, having been seen by millions of Americans and peoples of other nations.

It comes to the Glendale Theatre again as a revival, following a popular demand.

The story is by that great American author, Mark Twain, and recounts how a typical American couple found romance in England, and of their dream of days long gone by, when knights rode full panoplied and fought for their ladies fair.

It is a whimsical, delightful, gorgeous, immortal film, is "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court."

minders of early days. Arlington Cemetery is finely located, and just now the deep green of the trees, the cool, dark little canyons, wherein you see curious animals of the 'zoo' feeding and the countless grave stones of our honored heroes, from the gray, weather-worn ones to the fresh white ones of those who gave their all in the last great war, makes a drive which one can never forget.

"But the crowning event of the trip is the Lincoln Memorial. You who have not been here since its completion cannot know how grand yet simple, how beautiful yet adorned, it is. Its particular bid for fame of course lies in the immense marble statue of the great man himself. The deep lines in the homely, kindly, human face, the wrinkles in the trousers and in the coat, show the artist's splendid conception of the wonderful man. It is fitting that the Memorial is located in a direct line with the Capitol, the Monument, and Arlington, and each approximately equidistant from the next.

Visit Mt. Vernon

"Our trip to Mt. Vernon on Saturday by boat, down the Potomac, was very enjoyable. The day was fine and the country perfect. I noticed not long ago in 'The News' a splendid detailed account of a Mt. Vernon trip by Mrs. Jones, so I will not attempt to add anything to it. Suffice it to say that when the old negro attendant allows you to view the sarcophagus wherein lie the remains of the 'Father of His Country,' it brings to you a realization of the fact that he really lived, in a way which you had never known before.

"And isn't it fine that the old spirit of enmity has so far died out that the British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes has brought a large wreath of artificial flowers and placed it at the head of the tomb of the man, who, more than any other, was responsible for the loss of the United States to Britain?

"The city is quiet now, Congress not being in session and no important conference on, but it is a good town notwithstanding. Out of a population of about 450,000, the guide tells us that about 100,000 are negroes and about 120,000 direct employes of the government. Any city would be proud of Washington's hotels and apartment buildings. Some of the latter are very large and fine and a new hotel 'The Walker' is under construction to contain 1000 rooms and to cost $8,000,000.

See Woodrow Wilson

"Although we made no attempt to see any celebrities, just as we were passing the home of Ex-president Wilson, he was starting out for a drive so we had a glimpse of him in his car. We also saw him and his wife at 'Keith's Theatre' on Saturday evening, where he attends once a week, and where the people always give a demonstration for him. He is still unable to get about much, coming into the theatre with difficulty.

"Cheer up folks! Glendale and Los Angeles seem to be about the cheapest towns in the country to live in, so far as "eats' are concerned anyway. In Chicago just for fun I priced grapefruit at 15 cents apiece; California cherries at 45 to 60 cents a pound; green peas at 25 cents; beets and turnips, three small ones to a bunch, at 15 cents a bunch, how's that?

"I think prices are even worse here in Washington, judging from the prices in hotels and cafes. I repeat what I wrote before, that I believe people live better in California, have more for less money, than in any place in the country."

Another letter from Mr. Kirk will be published in a few days.

ADVOCATES PLAN TO PICK TALENT

Mrs. Charles H. Toll Would Give Speakers and Artists Preliminary Test

A great step in the perfection of satisfying club programs is suggested by Mrs. Charles H. Toll of Glendale, president of the Los Angeles Federation of Women's clubs, who advances the plan of having prospective speakers and artists appear in "tryout" before club program chairmen before being engaged for appearances before clubs.

"The club program has become a very serious matter," says Mrs. Toll. "We are compelled to pay large sums for persons we have never heard and whom we have never seen and rely on what some one else says about them.

"I have talked the matter over with several of the club presidents and we are inclined to believe that a club 'tryout,' to use theatrical vernacular, would work to a good end for all women's clubs.

"If a speaker, a singer, a pianist is worthy of appearing before a club, then it would be an easy matter, after a preliminary hearing with an audience of program chairmen, to secure them for other organizations without further inquiry."

Will Urge Plan

It is Mrs. Toll's intention to present this plan to federation directors and chairmen of programs with a recommendation for its adoption as a permanent procedure in securing club talent.

Acording to club women Mrs. Toll's plan will not only provide satisfying programs, but programs free from propaganda, which often appears in club programs without being detected and the club members find themselves wondering, after a speaker has appeared, just how he or she happened to be selected.

Mrs. Toll and Mrs. John C. Urquhart, president of the California State Federation of Women's clubs, are to establish headquarters in a prominent location in Los Angeles.

Will Attend Meeting Of Postal Officials

Secretary E. F. Sanders of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce will leave tomorrow for San Francisco, where he will attend the conference of postal officials that is to be held Wednesday. Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson and Assistant Postmaster George Hallett leave this evening for a preliminary conference tomorrow.

L. A. PRESBYTERY MEETS TOMORROW

Glendale Pastors to Attend Session at Fullerton To Hear Reports

The Presbytery of Los Angeles will hold its June meeting in the Presbyterian church of Fullerton tomorrow. This meeting will be of more than usual interest, as reports will be given by the delegates who attended the recent Presbyterian General Assembly, which met in Indianapolis.

The Indianapolis assembly attracted more attention than any like assembly of recent years, as matters came before it which were of the gravest import to the entire church and to other denominations as well. It is expected that some of these matters will be discussed before the Fullerton meeting tomorrow when the delegates give their reports.

The Glendale Presbyterian church will be represented in the Fullerton meeting by the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, the assistant pastor, Rev. Louis Tinning, and, as a representative of the session, Elder D. L. Foster, of 607 East Elk street. A report of the general assembly will be made to the Glendale church at an early date by one of the men who attelnded the assembly in Indianapolis.

Bible Class Changes Its Place of Meeting

The Wednesday Morning Interdenominational Bible class, which has met continuously for the past three years each week at the home of the teacher, Mrs. J. Rhea Baker, 331 N. Maryland Ave., has decided to change its place of meeting to the Gospel Tabernacle Church, located at the corner of Louise and Chestnut streets. The class will now meet in the commodious, pleasant Women's Bible Class Room built especially for the women of this church.

The time of meeting has been changed and the class will now be known as The Tuesday Afternoon Women's Bible Class. It is anticipated that the popularity of this class will markedly increase since they will now not be limited for room. The class is still open to women of all or no denomination in Glendale or vicinity. As the result of women in the vicinity attending the class, classes have been organized as extension work in Burbank and Edendale, and there is also a large class in North Glendale as the result of the demand on the part of women desiring to know the Bible for themselves and the deeper truths of the spiritual life. The minstry of the women who are members of these classes is of untold value to the life of the community in which they are situated. The class will meet at 2:00 o'clock each Tuesday afternoon at the above-mentioned place.

A nursery is provided for the benefit of mothers of babies or young children, and will be in charge of competent women.

SINGS AT CHURCH

Mrs. C. A. Parker, of 212 North Orange street, director of music at St. Mark's Episcopal chrch, sang as a contralto solo in the morning: "The Lord is Mindful," by Mendelssohn.

It will be the first annual gathering in the new clubhouse, and will be featured by the presence of 500 or more club members and guests.

Mrs. John C. Urquhart, president of the California Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Charles H. Toll, president of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's clubs; Mayor Spencer Robinson; club women planning for the gathering of the National federation of Women's clubs next year in Los Angeles, and other national, state and district present and past officers, will be honored guests.

Edmonds Points Path To Highest Success

"The Spirit of Wisdom, Power, Success," was the topic of the sermon yesterday morning at the Presbyterian church.

"Wisdom as set forth in the Scriptures is the only basis of all true education," asserted Rev. W E. Edmonds. "Such education spells power, and always results in success.

"Wisdom, power and success are finely illustrated in the life of Joseph. Perhaps never a life touched more closely the common life of suffering humanity. He was separated from home and friends, in captivity, disgraced, yet, true to God, he rises from prison to princedom. It was not a triumph of human character, but of divine direction. It was the power of God's holy spirit in the practical affairs of human life.

"Young men and young women looking into the future and wanting to know the secret of highest success, put your faith in the same holy spirit that led Joseph up from obscurity to great power and success. The Holy Spirit is willing to be your guide and teacher of wisdom."

TODAY: Oregon School Law Up Again; The Supreme Court Ruling.

TOMORROW—Peace at Last In Ireland; De Valera's Last Threat; The New Government, by Daniel O'Connell, Dublin correspondent.

By JAMES S. SHEEHY
For International News Service

PORTLAND, Ore., June 25.—Decision of the United States Supreme Court in declaring void State statutes prohibiting teaching of foreign languages in schools below the eighth grade has re-centered attention upon the anti-parochial school law passed by the voters of Oregon at the general election last November.

Opponents of the Oregon law view the decision as extremely favorable to their contemplated attack upon the constitutionality of the anti-private school measure enacted in this State. They believe the two cases are analogous. They point out that the Oregon law clearly comes within the confines of the fourteenth amendment, which was so stressed by the Supreme Court in annulling State measures prohibiting the use of foreign tongues in grade schools.

Forces and organizations which contested the Oregon law prior to election have held somewhat in abeyance their plan of attack on the constitutionality of the measure pending the court decision in the language cases. It is understood that they will shortly announce their campaign to attack the legal issues involved in the case, with the hope of ultimately having the United States Supreme Court rule once and for all time on the question of private schools.

The Oregon law, passed during one of the greatest political fights and upheavals in the state, provides that after September, 1926, all children between the ages of six and fourteen years must attend the public schools of the state. Fine and imprisonment are the penalty for parents and guardians who fail to comply with the provisions. The bill, opponents say, would virtually abolish all private schools, including secular and non-sectarian institutions. It was conceded prior to the election that the bill was directly framed to abolish the Catholic parochial school. The Ku Klux Klan was the most ardent supporter of the measure.

Justice McReynolds, in the language cases, is reported to have said: "The fourteenth amendment without doubt denotes not merely freedom from bodily restraint, but also the right of the individual to acquire useful knowledge, to marry, to establish a home and to bring up children, to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience and generally to enjoy those privileges long recognized by common law as essential to the orderly pursuit of happiness by free men."

"I think this is a clear indication that the Oregon school law cannot get by this interpretation of the constitution," said A. F. Flegel, local attorney, who was active during the campaign in fighting the bill. "The Oregon law violates the right to acquire useful knowledge, to bring up children and to worship God according to one's conscience, and it violates a privilege long recognized by common law as essential to the ordinary pursuit of happiness by a free people."

W. L. Brewster, attorney and general secretary of non-sectarian organizations which fought the bill, believes that the type of legislation in the two questions is similar. He insists that the legality of the Oregon law can be attacked on the same basis as the language law, pointing out that "if you can't restrict a school as to the language it will teach, certainly you can't restrict the teaching of private schools."

Some who favor the law are frankly concerned over the new ruling. However, some proponents contend that the language case decision will have no effect upon the constitutionality of the Oregon law. They maintain that it has no direct bearing upon the questions embodied in the compulsory school statute.

THE JUNKET

The good old ship Leviathan
Will sail adown the sea.
The government will pay the shot,
The trial trip will be free
To all of the invited guests—
But not to you and me.

'Twill cost a half a million
To give these lads a trip.
I thought they always told us
That we-all owned that ship,
But do we get invited?
Oh, toodle-oo, pip-pip!

Some tinhorn politicians,
Some almost-statesmen, too,
Will make this pleasant voyage
Across the bounding blue.
And, just as they are leaving,
Your income tax is due.

Oh, they will not ignore us;
No, not a little bit.
They'll let us do our duty
And work the good old mitt.
They'll let us dig down in the jeans
And pay for it.

If, as the Shipping Board says, the Leviathan belongs to all of us, why not let us all take turns giving parties to our friends aboard her? Our friends, as well as Chairman Lasker's, would appreciate a free ocean trip, no doubt, if the Leviathan is to be a pleasure yacht.

HORNED MONSTERS

Big Triceratops and Little Triceratops

One of the puzzles about the great horned dinosaurs is that no bones of any young ones have ever been found. Recently a small specimen was dug up which was at first thought to represent a baby, so to speak, but experts identified it as a distinct species. Its skeleton—only six and one-half feet long and twenty-seven inches high—stands today in the National Museum at Washington, alongside of a full-sized member of the same genus, Triceratops, which is twenty feet long and eight feet high.

The horned dinosaurs, so far as known, belong exclusively to North America, their fossil bones being found only within a narrow belt along the east flank of the Rocky mountains, from the Big Bend of the Rio Grande northward to Alberta, Canada. Most numerously do theey occur in the numerously do they occur in the eastern Wyoming.

The most remarkable thing about these monsters was a gigantic head armed with horns, the skull having a backward extension in the form of a great bony crest or frill. This crest was evidently designed for the attachment of the powerful muscles needed to uphold the head, which weighed about a ton.

The skull of a full-grown Triceratops, including the crest, was eight feet long. A pair of huge horns extended upward and forward from above the eyes, and a third horn of smaller size adorned the nose of the beast. The eyes were set in deep, thick-rimmed sockets, and the skull contained a brain smaller than that of any other known vertebrate, relatively to the size of the animal.

The horned dinosaurs were quadrupeds with short, massive limbs and broad, elephantine feet, the toes tipped with hoofs. Their bodies were heavily barreled, and the short neck was completely covered by the frill of the skull. Presumably they fed on the foliage of trees.

They were tremendous fighters and often engaged in combat, the bulls in rivalry, doubtless; or when attacked by fierce dinosaurs of other and carnivorous species. Of this fact plenty of evidence is afforded by healed wounds found in many of their skulls, broken horns, fractured and healed jaws and pierced crests.

Billy Whiskers

By Frances Trego Montgomery

"A lake, did you say? I never heard of any lake," said Billy in astonishment as the old goat took him to task for calling the canal a "ditch."

"No, probably not. There are a good many things you have not heard of in connection with this ditch, as you call the canal."

"Why don't they go around the lake?"

"It is not so easy to go around this lake as you suppose, with its many inlets and rivers that flow into it. This lake proved to be a great help instead of a hindrance to them, for by making dams and locks they could sail on its waters when otherwise they would have had to dig a ditch. The only trouble was that it was eighty-five feet above sea level, so they had to build the locks to raise the vessels up to its level. This lake is called Gatun lake, and the dam and locks at this place are named after it.

"The Chagres river used to flow into the lake right where these locks now are, but it was in their way, so they simply changed its course. Tell you what, these Americans are the smart fellows! If they found a mountain in their way they removed it by digging and hauling away. If there was a river they drained the water off into another river or lake. That is the way they have built this canal. Anything they did not wish to use they disposed of it in some way or other."

"I don't see," said Billy, "how a sailing vessel is going to sail through this canal, for I always thought that they had to tack, and there would not be room for that in a canal any more than in a river. Canal boats have to have either horses or mules to tow them along. One horse or mule can tow an ordinary canal boat, but it would take many horses or mules to tow a large sailing vessel or a huge ocean steamer."

"The builders of the canal have fixed all that. You can't stump them nohow," replied the old goat. "The way they are going to get these big boats through is by using big towing locomotives that run on a track beside the canal. And when it is completed, there will be grass, plants, flower beds and fountains beside the tracks to make it look attractive. They are also going to have light towers and beacons to signal the boats when to start and leave.

"Just think what a wonder it will be to enter a lock at sea level and be gradualy raised up many feet, then towed several miles farther through the canal and then raised many more feet until one has been raised eighty-five feet in all above the sea level, up to Gatun lake. Then one will be lowered in the same way by entering locks until down once more to sea level and you sail out into the Pacific ocean on the opposite side.

(Tomorrow the old goat's long story of the canal is interrupted.)

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE RED BERRIES

"There!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one morning, after she had fastened some feathers to the end of her tail and had switched it about the parlor, dusting the piano. "Everything is nice and clean now, ready for company. Oh, but I have forgot something!" went on the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"Perhaps you have forgotten to invite the company," said Uncle Wiggily, looking in the glass to see if his left ear was higher than his right.

"Oh, no, I invited the company!" replied Miss Fuzzy, with a laugh that showed what sharp, white teeth she had. "It isn't that. But I need a bouquet of flowers, or a bunch of something red, to put on the mantel. Red makes a room so cheerful and gay. I wish we had some red flowers growing in the garden."

"We have some blue ones," said Uncle Wiggily.

"I need red ones," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Red will make the animal ladies who are coming, feel jolly and happy. Dear me, I wonder where I could get a bunch of something red for the mantel?"

"You might take one of my old red neckties," suggested Uncle Wiggily, and then he quickly ran and jumped out of the window so Nurse Jane wouldn't tickle him with the feathers that she had tied on the end of her tail.

"Wiggy, please don't be so silly," begged Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"I'll not," promised the bunny uncle. "And to make up for what I said, I'll skip and hop through the woods, and find you a bunch of red flowers with which to decorate the room."

"Oh, thank you!" exclaimed the muskrat lady housekeeper. Then she busied herself by putting the hollow stump bungalow in order, while Uncle Wiggily hopped this way and that way, over the fields and through the woods looking for some red flowers.

Pretty soon the bunny gentleman met Floppy Twistytail, the little boy pig, on his way to school.

"Floppy, did you see red flowers growing anywhere around here, that I may pick some for Nurse Jane to put on the mantel, so the hollow stump bungalow will look gay for company?" asked Mr. Longears.

"I didn't see any red flowers, but I saw some red, shiny berries growing on a bush," grunted Floppy.

"Tell me where!" begged Uncle Wiggily. "Perhaps red berries will do as well for Nurse Jane as red flowers. Where did you see them, Floppy?"

"Down by the brook, Uncle Wiggily! They are very bright red berries, growing in bunches. When I first saw them I thought some one had started a bonfire in the bush, they were so red. But when I looked a second time I saw that they were berries. Hop down by the brook and you'll see them."

"Thank you, Floppy, I shall," said Uncle Wiggily, and he did. Soon he was picking a bunch of the bright, red berries which grew in clusters on a bush.

"These will be lovely for Nurse Jane to decorate the room," thought the bunny uncle, and he was just going to twinkle his pink nose a little on one side, because it tickled him, when, all of a sudden, out from behind a big rock, popped the Bob Cat, with his silly little tail.

"Greetings, Uncle Wiggily! Greetings!" howled the Bob Cat, speaking sarcastically polite. "I have come to nibble your ears."

"Oh, have you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, not knowing what else to say, and hoping he might think of a way to play a trick on the Bob Cat. And then, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily remembered what the piggie boy had said about the red berries looking like a bonfire.

"Ha! That's what I'll do! I'll scare the Bob Cat!" thought the bunny gentleman. Quickly thrusting out a bunch of the bright red berries toward the bad chap, Uncle Wiggily cried: "You have come to nibble my ears, have you? Well, suppose I burn your tail with this bunch of fire?" And when the bunny uncle waved the flaming red berries at the Bob Cat the bad creature thought it was a blazing torch and he cried:

"Oh, don't burn my tail! Don't burn my tail! It is only a little one, but don't burn my tail, I'll be good." And away he ran as fast as he could run.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Red berries are good for something else than decorating a room." But Nurse Jane put them on the parlor mantel, and her company thought they were very fine indeed. And they said Mr. Longears was very brave to frighten the Bob Cat as he did. So if the glass of water doesn't try to stand on its head and get the table cloth all wet, I'll try to tell you next about Uncle Wiggily playing golf.

VICE IS RAMPANT IN ORIENT, SAYS NEW YORK WOMAN MAGISTRATE

"When a woman throws up her hands at the vice situation in the big cities of the United States you can put her down as one who never had a look at Oriental conditions. What we call 'vice,' even at its worst, is almost innocuous in comparison with conditions in the east."

This is the verdict of Magistrate Jean Norris of New York, the "lady judge," as she was acclaimed throughout the Orient, from which she has just returned. She went on a leave of absence with a commission to study vice conditions.

MRS. JEAN H. NORRIS

In four months she visited Gibraltar, Naples, Alexandria, Cairo, Calcutta, Bombay, Sumatra, Java and Ceylon, Shanghai, Canton, Hong Kong and the Portuguese settlement in China, Osaka and Tokio in Japan, Manila and Honolulu.

"In Tokio and Osaka children's courts were opened in January last, and I saw them functioning successfully. The probation system, hitherto unknown in Japan, has been inaugurated in these courts," said the magistrate.

"In Japan conditions we would consider horrible are accepted as a matter of course, and with no especial need of reformation. But I am glad to say the germ of reform has taken root among thinking people."

"AMERICANS MUST CONSERVE ON CLOTHING OR EXHAUST SUPPLY"

"We are using raw materials for clothes faster than they can be produced. We are going to have to submit to conservation methods or find ourselves in the predicament of having no clothes." So declares Dr. C. F. Langworthy, government specialist on home economics. "Most of us have more clothes than we need. Vanity is at the back of most clothes buying. It was found during the war that national resources were materially affected by household conservation. Along with having too many clothes we eat too much food. The science of housekeeping is one that should receive universal study. Yet it looks as though housekeeping would soon be a lost art. As for preparing food, what housewife today studies to make delicious pie-crust? The succulent and truly American Great Pie Dish is being ruined nowadays."

Sermon Excerpts And News Notes From Local Churches

CHURCHES of Glendale held solemn, impressive services yesterday, attended by large crowds. Pastors preached on varied topics and special music was provided by soloists and choirs. Herewith are presented brief excerpts from sermons and, too, other church news:

Sound Doctrine Hope Of World, Says Pastor

"Sound Doctrine" was the subject of the sermon yesterday morning in the American Legion hall, 610 East Broadway, before the congregation of the Broadway Methodist church.

There were several additions to the choir. Dr. C. M. Cagle sang "Come Unto Me," and Miss Anita Cagle played a violin selection. A new Sunday school class was organized under the direction of Mrs. W. W. Slaughter.

"The hope of the world, yea, the only hope, is sound doctrine," said Rev. L. J. Millikan. "If a doctrine is sound, it will not only stand the test here, but will stand the searching test of the great white light over yonder. I contend for a sound doctrine, but not for a creed. Sound doctrine as taught in God's word is going eventually to conquer every individual, every nation. Then, and not until then, will every knee bow in reverence to Jesus Christ.

"The need for the preaching of sound doctrine is greater today than at any previous time for, as never before, are the enemies of the Christian religion endeavoring to undermine the sacred Scriptures."

Activity Is Rule in Heavenly Vineyard

"Our Labor in the Lord's Vineyard and Our Reward" was the theme of the sermon yesterday morning at the Concordia Lutheran church.

"In our Gospel of today," said Rev. Henry O. Kringle, "the whole world is pictured as a market-place, where the people are standing about idle and knowing not what to do while the Kingdom of Heaven is pictured as a vineyard where all are kept busy. Some enter the vineyard early in the day, others come later. All day long they come into the vineyard, some even in the very last hour. But from the moment they enter the vineyard they work. They are engaged for the very purpose to labor in the vineyard.

"Now what does this teach us? It teaches us that in the Lord's vineyard, there is no idleness but restless activity. He that is still standing idle and doing nothing in a spiritual way; he that does not seek God's kingdom and His righteousness; he that does not run for the prize and fight for the incorruptible crown—he is not in the Lord's vineyard; not in God's kingdom; not a true Christian."

Character Building, Calderwood's Theme

Glendale Masons attended special services last night at the Congregational church. Character Building" was the subject of the sermon by Rev. C. M. Calderwood.

"God is the Supreme Architect and we are the workmen carrying on His work and doing His bidding," he asserted. "We have banded ourselves together as a body of workmen that we may better do His work.

"As we compare the building of King Solomon's temple with the building of our character we find that there are many points of similarity. God works with the thunder, the tornado, the avalanche and the earthquake, but His greatest work is done silently. Millions of tons of water are drawn silently from the earth to the clouds; millions of tons of corn and wheat will be drawn silently out of the earth by the magnetism of the sun's heat. The silent force of gravitation holds the earth. in its course and silently holds all things in their proper place upon the earth.

"How the silent forces shape our characters. Masonry is not unmindful of these. The first and greatest is God."

Organ Recital Part Of Church Services

An organ recital by Oscar F. Walton of the Bible Institute preceded the sermon last night at the Presbyterian church. His three numbers included "Andante Cantabile," by Flagler; "Sweet Hour of Prayer," by Ashford, and "Romanza," by Mozart.

Three numbers by the church quartet were sung during the day. This is composed of Mrs. F. M. Retts of 114 West Park avenue, directer of music for the church, contralto; Miss Elizabeth Mottern of 211 North Adams street, soprano; J. M. Huddy of Pasadena. tenor, and Robert S. Maile of Los Angeles, baritone. In the morning it sang "I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes," by Stults; in the evening it sang two selections, "A Heart to Praise My God," by Wildermere, and "Now the Day Is Over," by Golson.

Mr. Huddy sang "Come Unto Me, Ye Weary," by Pinsuti, as a tenor solo in the morning.

OBSERVE COMMUNION

Holy Communion was observed yesterday morning at the First Lutheran church. Dr. H. C. Funk, pastor of the church, officated. He preached a brief sermon upon the subject: "Benefits to Be Derived Through Participation in the Lord's Supper."

REVIEWS MEXICO RELIGIOUS LIFE

Need of Gospel Education in Southern Republic Told By Pastor

"Mexico for Seventeen Hundred Years" was the subject of a stereopticon lecture last night in the Seventh Day Adventist church.

"The aboriginal religion," remarked Rev. R. W. Parmele, "was displaced by the European conquerors by taking away their multiplicity of gods, and giving them a multitude of saints. Their human sacrifice was abolished, and in its place they were given the Inquisition. And, withal, the substitute proved no more satisfying than that for which it was substituted. They soon found themselves under the power of a foreign ruler. Even some of the priests themselves saw the injustice of the situation, and rebelled. Hidalgo, the first to rebel, called his church together, and told them of his intention. His cause gained strength, until he, himself, fell before the enemy. Others took the new banner where he left it, and the power of Spain was ultimately broken.

"But still liberty was not complete. The republic was established, but foreign interference continued. The church owned very large tracts of land, and churches and other religious edifices were everywhere evident. This could lead only to other rebellions, and revolutions. In each of these the people have broken more and more away from the power of the church, until now, according to the Mexican constitution, it is unlawful for anyone, except native-born Mexicans, to preach within the republic. And all church property belongs to the government, and the government may say who shall worship in these edifices. This however, is used only as an "enabling act," to enable them to expel any religionist who interferes with governmental affairs, and to close any church property that does not seem desirable to the government. In this way a number of the churches and monasteries have been closed, or wrecked. Streets in the City of Mexico are now opened through the spots where formerly existed churches. When I was last in Mexico City, the government notified the Society of Jesuits that they needed their building for use for the office of the public health, and there was no alternative but to give possession.

Mexicans Peace Loving

"Instead of regarding the Mexican people as a quarrelsome race because of the many revolutions there have been there, the real facts are that they should be regarded as a peace-loving lot, who are struggling to shake their country from the grip that it has been in, and to give to it the freedom to which all men are born, and the rights with which all men are endowed by their Creator. True, they have not always striven for these things in the wisest way, but in the only way that they knew. They should be given a helping hand, and I am sure they will respond. They are looking to their big brother on the north for help, and, I am sure, earnestly desire to be a help to us. The remark is often heard, 'We need you, and you need us.' At the close of a dinner which it was my privilege to attend at the inauguration of President Obregon, speaking to the Americans, the master of ceremonies closed his remarks by saying, 'Today, and ever hereafter, we wish to live by your side as neighbors, as friends, and as brothers.'

"When those countries broke away from the Roman Catholic church, the most of the people regarded that they were breaking away from God. Some declared themselves atheists — absolutely without belief in God. Some declared themselves agnostics—do not know where or not there is a God, and are not sure that anyone else knows. Still others, not wishing to give up a hope in the hereafter, and having enjoyed their supposed communion with the departed saints, and help from them, turned to spiritualism. But some, of course, remained loyal to their religion, though opposed to the rule of the clergy. All in their hearts, recognize that they need light, and now is the opportune time to give them the Gospel in its purity. In it they will find the liberty for which they have been longing, the help that they need to lift them to a better life here, and the hope of the future that will buoy up their souls in the conflicts of life."

COLE OFFICIATES

"Duties by the Wayside" was the sermon topic yesterday morning at the Central Christian church. Rev. C. A. Cole officiated at the services. Mrs. C. C. Stoler, of 1262 Justin street, and Mrs. Floyd Mercer, of 319 North Jackson street, sang as a duet, Coerne's "High in the Heavens." The anthem was "My Task," by E. L. Ashford.

REV. BRINK PREACHES

Rev. V. Hunter Brink, pastor of the Central Avenue Methodist church, preached yesterday morning on the topic: "Present Sufferings; Future Glory." The topic of the evening sermon was: "I Have Found a Ransom."

Public Declaration Of Belief Necessary

"Duties by the Wayside" was the subject of the sermon yesterday morning at the Central Christian church.

"Those who sustain the work of the church are generally the busy, hard-working people," remarked Rev. C. A. Cole. "They are those who feel the need of communion and self-introspection.

"The self-sphere is the prominent feature of private prayer and not to be overlooked. But, when we pray with others, we are helped to forget self in common sympathies. We need to make public declaration of our belief in God and of our allegiance to Him.

"One thing at a time is about all of us feel prompted to tackle. Going to church is going to church; business is that and nothing more; pleasure means having a good time. And it takes so nearly all that is available in most of us to attend to any of these things that the many-sided, inarticulate appeals of the sin-crippled world are either not recognized or are passed over because we are otherwise engaged."

Pioneer Evangelist Bible Class Subject

'Philip the Evangelist" was the subject of the lecture by Rev. Keith L. Brooks yesterday morning in the council chamber at the City Hall before the Men's Brotherhood of the Presbyterian church.

"Philip's position as the pioneer evangelist has not been appreciated," he said. "Philip was impressed to take a lonely journey out upon a desert road from Jerusalem. At first it seemed like a useless journey, yet he could not escape the impulse, and we are given a wonderful picture of how the Spirit of God set things in motion to save the soul of a single individual.

"God opens the door of opportunity in very unlikely places. Philip might well wonder why he should be taken away from a successful work in a populous city and impressed to go on a lonely road but sometimes obedience to the leadings of God is fraught with tremendous consequences.

"We shall learn in the hereafter what a vast amount of labor and prayer and what a multitude of influences have been required to bring us to salvation."

Missionary Preaches At Methodist Church

Dr. Ada Johnson, who for many years was a missionary in China, occupied the pulpit yesterday morning at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church.

Rev. J. C. Livingston in the evening answered the inquiry: "How may we know that we are Christians?"

Miss Beatrice Sasse of 221 Howard street sang the offertory solo in the morning. It was Reich's "When the Roses Bloom."

IN GOSPEL TENT

Rev. L. E. Swaney, evangelist, preached yesterday afternoon and last night at the gospel tent on Harvard street between Orange street and Central avenue under the auspices of the Church of the Nazarene.

WINNING FRIENDS

"How We Can Win Friends and Keep Them" was the subject of discussion last night by the Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church.

Holding up a Decision

Today's Short Story by Ad Schuster

The stagecoach swung along the mountain road, creeking and rumbling. With every turn the driver braced his feet and leaned over the side, using his full weight on the reins to hold the horses to the curve. Then the whip shot out from behind his shoulder to crack like a pistol shot beside a flank.

As a girl she had visited her uncle in the mountain village. She remembered the character of the country without its detail, the thrill of an earlier stage ride, and the stories of robberies. The driver was armed, she had noticed that, and the express box was under the seat just as it had been before.

This visit was to last a year. The chance to take the school had come as an answer to her entreaties. Aileen saw in the opportunity a way to certain decisions and peace of mind.

When a little girl from the city and the east visits the mountains as Aileen had she cannot expect to escape unimpressed. Aileen had carried all of the romance of the wild country back with her, had nurtured its growth and relived its scenes until she thought of little else. It had been her plan to return, to make her home in a land of brave men and braver women. Aileen was seventeen when she resolved she would marry no one save a westerner, a cowboy, or a rancher.

At nineteen Aileen met Tom Larke. He had been to Europe three times, but never once west of the Alleghenies. Tom persisted in occupying her thoughts and defying her resolution. Then came the chance to go west. It would settle everything.

"I will learn how much I care for Tom and how much he cares for me," she told herself. "And I will find out whether it is going to be possible for me to give up my dream."

Now she looked out of the stagecoach windows in the days before highways and motor cars, and she felt the old spell returning. The coach shook violently as it came to a halt. Aileen could hear shouting, looked out to see the front team rearing under the sudden pull of lines, and knew that something was wrong. She thrust her head out of the windows and saw the robber.

He was standing beside a tree, a tall man whose face was covered, all but the eyes, with a bandana handkerchief. Those eyes were terribly alert and menacing. They shifted quickly, wary of surprise, and their threat was backed by a brace of pistols.

At a motion from the robber the driver jumped from the seat and stood with arms upheld. Then the passengers, including the frightened girl, lined up beside him. The robber was quick and methodical. He moved from one to another taking tribute. He had pocketed one pistol now and used his free hand to take from his victims the coins and jewelry which he tossed into the driver's hat on the ground. In front of the girl the big man paused. Then he reached and took the pin from her throat. Aileen shrank as the man's hand reached toward her, and the hand, extended, grasping to take the pin, was the one vivid impression of the adventure which remained.

In Larryup the hold-up was taken as a matter of course.

"If Rhymer Phil doesn't use any more consideration, we'll have to lay for him," her uncle said. "This is the second time he's tackled our stage in six months." They called him Rhymer, the uncle explained, because the sheriff's men frequently found bits of doggerel stuck on trees when they went to look for him.

A new girl in Larryup was an event. Aileen was given the opportunity to compare the suitors of this place with those at home. There was none, she decided, like Tom, unless it were the quiet Earl Dyer.

In six months Dyer had the field to himself. For all his quiet ways, men did not cross this man, nor did they speak ill of him within hearing. When Aileen's uncle uttered vague warnings he did no more than stir her interest anew. There was something romantic and mysterious about Dyer. Tom Larke seemed far away.

"I remembered it was your birthday." The big man blushed like a boy. "And I am wondering if you would care to take a little present from me. It don't amount to much." He showed her a tiny nugget set on a pin. "It's the sort of thing to make you think of this country, a souvenir, so it's all right for you to accept it." He was so fearful of refusal that Aileen smiled.

"Surely, I'll take it," she said, "from you."

Emboldened, the man extended the pin to fasten it, himself, on her collar. The hand shook a bit, for Dyer was surprised at his temerity and uncertain of the propriety of the act. Aileen looked into his eyes and encouraged.

As her gaze dropped it was the hand she saw—a large hand reaching toward her throat. The old picture stood out in her mind, every detail deeply etched. That hand, the ridge in the tip of the forefinger—this one bearing a gift—they were the same!

His finger touched her. The girl drew back, summoned her courage and faced him.

"I've changed my mind," she said, with an attempt at carelessness. "It isn't really proper for a girl to accept presents of jewelry."

Earl Dyer looked down at the pin in his hand. It seemed a long time before he lifted his head, and when he did it was with the alert, wary look of the stage-robber.

"Sorry. Well, it doesn't amount to much, anyway." He was gone.

Aileen left for home without having seen Dyer again. When she met Tom her mind was made up and her days filled with happiness and planning.

Among her wedding presents was a little box containing two pins. One was the nugget she had refused from Dyer. The other was the pin which had been taken by the robber.

NEW WHIMS IN LINGERIE

An interesting P. S. to Fashion's decree for lingerie concerns itself with pajamas, a combination for girls and juniors and a slip to wear under straight-line frocks. The jacket of the pajamas has a V-shaped neck and is bound with bias folds of self-material. They may be fashioned of crepe de Chine, washable satin, radium silk, batiste, cotton crepe or voile. Medium size requires 4¼ yards 36-inch material.

The step-in combination consists of chemise and drawers cut in one, with either round or bandeau neck. It is trimmed with narrow lace and satin ribbon. Medium size requires 1⅞ yards 36-inch batiste, muslin or crepe.

Slips are so much in demand that the model pictured to the extreme right will be interesting. It has a straight upper edge, with ribbon straps. It may be fashioned of batiste, handkerchief linen, crepe de Chine, radium silk of fine sateen. Embroiderey applied to the front gives it an added decorative note. Two and one-half yards 36-inch material are needed for medium size.

First Model—Pictorial Review Pajamas No. 7555. Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price, 25 cents.

Second Model—Combination No. 8568. Sizes, 6 to 14 years. Price, 25 cents.

Third Model—Misses' Slip No. 1097. Sizes, 14 to 20 years. Price, 30 cents.

Side Talks

by Ruth Cameron

FROM THE INSIDE LOOKING OUT

"Well, I certainly learned something today," said the Authorman.

He had spent most of his afternoon at the garage, and this is what he had learned:

That oftentimes when we condemn a person for charging too much for "a perfectly simple job that could be done in ten minutes" we prove our own ignorance rather than his or her incapacity.

The Authorman had taken a simple accessory over to the garage to have it put on his car.

A Lesson We Need

"There was no one to bring me back," he said, "and so I had to wait while it was put on. It made me sore at the time, but it was worth while in one way. I should have said that it would take that man about half an hour. I thought he had to twist a few wires and put in a few screws and make a connection and that that was all there was to it. But when he came to put in those few screws he rang up against a snag right off. And it took him two hours of steady work. He didn't loiter. I was there and I know. He kept right at it, and he did well to get it done in that time. But if I hadn't been there and had gotten the bill for two hours' work I might have been sore. I think I'll remember that the next time I feel like talking about overcharging and profiteering."

I imagine we all need a lesson like that once in a while.

It is always easy to raise the cry of profiteer. And sometimes the cry is well justified. But there are many other times when we show our own ignorance.

Only the Food

Haven't you sometimes heard the woman who doesn't see why they charge so much at restaurants reckoning up the cost of a meal? She reckons the cost of food and that alone; and when she finds it is much greater than the cost would be to her if she bought that food and cooked it at her own table, she sets up a howl of profiteer.

She reckons nothing for service, nothing for light, nothing for heat, nothing for depreciation (an innkeeper once said to me that he had some guests who managed, when they sat down in a chair, to take a dollar's worth of wear out of it), nothing for profit. And because she can get up the same meal for which she pays $2.50 for a little over a dollar a plate she thinks she is being terribly stung. And yet it may be that the very caterer she criticizes is losing money.

When My Wrists Ached

My own most enlightening experience with the different aspects of a business or trade, seen from the inside, came when I tried to help paint a summer cottage. I had wondered why the professional house painters rested every little while. I couldn't see what there was so tiring about that gentle drawing of the brush back and forth. I found out when my own wrists began to ache.

And I couldn't see either why they spent such a long time over the windows. There was no need of its taking so long, I thought. They must be trying to prolong the work. I found out why it took them so long after I had drawn the sashes in one window.

Most games look easy to the onlooker. And even the beginner is often fooled by the simplicity of the first steps. As to the multiplicity of costs which have to be assessed before the price of a manufactured article (or a meal, or anything sold to the public) can be properly placed, not even business men themselves always remember to reckon all these. In fact, one of the common causes of business failure is this neglect of the manufacturer or merchant to take profit enough.

It is a deplorable fact that the average family is not fond of fish. On Fridays such a family will eat it—but on other days of the week meat is preferred.

And I must confess that I am among this majority who prefer meat to fish! Yet, for reasons of economy, I believe that we should eat fish at least twice a week. Many varieties of fish are cheaper than our favorite meats. We should, therefore, be glad to eat fish often, rather than only on Fridays.

In summer time, especially, it is wise for us to eat plenty of fish. For in hot weather we do not need the heavy, red-blooded meats; our stomachs are working under the handicap of exhausting atmospheric heat, and they can more easily digest the simple fish.

Although there are forty commonly known varieties of edible fish, the average housekeeper is familiar with only a few. This is doubtless because her local market carries only a few kinds (for, in different parts of the country, different kinds of fish are plentiful). Almost all of us, however, are familiar with the following kinds:

The Dark-Fleshed Fish—These are known as the oily meated fish. They have a rich flavor, for the fat is distributed through the flesh. The best known of this variety are the bluefish, mackerel, shad, salmon, herring, swordfish and sable fish. Because of their own rich flavor they need very little seasoning (except salt, butter and pepper), and they are best served with the mildly flavored and sweet-juice vegetables such as peas, carrots, beets, greens and asparagus. They need no sauces.

The White-Fleshed Fish, however, need rich butter and oil sauces to make them tempting. The best known of this variety are the flounder, pike, cod, hake, turbot, perch, pollack, striped bass, red snapper, haddock, halibut and whitefish. They are called "lean" and "dry-meated" fish, and they have their fat secreted in the liver. All strong-juiced or acid-flavored vegetables are suitable to serve with them—such as tomatoes, onions, cucumber, green pepper, dandelion greens and chives.

Of course these suggestions are not fixed dietetic laws. If you wish to serve one of the milder flavored vegetables with a white-fleshed fish, you can supply the acid or piquant flavor with a fruit salad or fruit dessert.

OIL THE SCALP

If, when you massage the scalp vigorously, a small amount of minute white flakes fall from the hair, you may be sure you have dandruff. The flakes are often so fine as to be almost invisible, and a good way to tell is to shake the hair over a piece of black paper, which will clearly show up whatever falls. In the early dandruff stage the hair will be normal, but later it will become too greasy, and, still later, too dry. Start curing dandruff before either of these catastrophes occur.

You must oil the scalp. It is the only way I know to rid yourself of dandruff and to keep it away. Of course, certain far-gone or stubborn cases may require special antiseptic ointments, or strong measures. Some recommend covering the scalp with a solution containing iodine. Some use carbolic, mixed with other things, but these treatments are only to be given by experts. Try nothing yourself that you do not understand.

In any case, try home-done oil treatments; if after a few months there is no improvement, then go to an expert. But, first of all, buy some crude oil at a drug store or a paint shop; thick, black, unrefined oil. Heat it as hot as your scalp will stand and massage a lot of it in thoroughly. Next day, shampoo with liquid castile soap and quantities of hot water until the oil is washed out. Repeat this process every three weeks.

Meantime, rub a very little olive or castor oil into the scalp every day or so. Never mind the greasy appearance of the hair. You must sacrifice fluffy locks for a few weeks. The sacrifice is more than worth while. After the second crude oil shampoo, use olive or castor oil twice a week; after the third time, once a week until cured.

Virginia M.—No dye can give a permanent color, as the hair begins throwing it off at once and the newly forming hair, as it grows out from the roots, will always be the natural shade.

E. A. S.—An effective bleach which is not irritating to the skin is the juice of the cucumber; when you get this included in a healing lotion it is a perfect combination.

Oil Cures Dandruff

Lonesome—Never treat a mole on the face yourself. Consult your doctor. Brush the brows together so they form into as narrow a line as you can make, but do not try to thin them out.

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

So-Called Bad Food Combinations

Have you heard so much about food combinations that you give yourself a great deal of concern about them? Some pseudo-scientists say in their writings that perfectly good foods if combined with other perfectly good foods may form chemical mixtures in the stomach which will explode! The combinations which they recommend won't do that, of course. Perhaps after reading such things you have been afraid your tummie might explode some day, and in consequence you are half starving yourself or worrying so much that your food does not digest.

Such advice is pure nonsense, and has no scientific basis at all. The only combinations of foods you must fear are the combinations that do not supply the needs of your system, as I have explained them to you. Under normal conditions you can eat practically any kind of combination—providing, as I have said, that during the day you get a balanced diet and providing, furthermore, that the foods are thoroughly masticated and not eaten to excess.

Starches and Acids

Those who have stated that starches and acids should not be eaten together, say that the saliva which acts upon the starch in the mouth has to be slightly alkaline and the acids would neutralize this alkalinity. But if we were to go by this advice, we would not be able to eat acid fruits with hardly any food, with the exception of meat and eggs, because all foods contain some starch or sugar.

By far the greater part of the starch digestion is carried on in the small intestines. So you need not worry about eating acid fruits and starch foods at the same time if you want to, providing—again, I repeat—you thoroughly masticate the food and do not eat in excess. Fruit acids stimulate the flow of a more strongly alkaline saliva so that they actually help in digesting all starches, even in the mouth.

Acids and Milk

It is true that milk curdles when fruit acids are added to it. But there is no fruit that is anywhere near so acid as the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice of the stomach. And, instead of fruit acids making milk indigestible, as a matter of fact they make it more digestible.

Experiments have proved that taking milk with foods will prevent large curds forming in the stomach more than merely sipping it will. (Boiling milk also prevents it from forming large curds.)

Milk and Meat

The Bible says "Thou shalt not seethe the kid in its mother's milk." Certain religions are particular in this respect, even having separate dishes and being very insistent that milk shall not touch meat. But, unless you have a religious scruple against this, you can have milk when you have meat. There is only this point to remember: milk has a high percentage of protein and meat also has a high percentage of protein, and, when you take them both together, you may increase the protein percentage of your diet too much unless you take smaller quantities of them. But they won't explode if taken at the same meal!

Heart and Home Problems

by Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a young man for two years and I am very fond of him, and I think I can truthfully say that he likes me or even loves me. He wants me to go only with him and even though I like him better than anyone else, I am not satisfied with just going with him and nobody else.

When I tell him I have other dates he flies into a rage and refuses to see me at all, and then I am perfectly miserable. He is a better boy than the majority of boys I go with and I feel it is my duty to give up the other boys who like to dance, ride and do foolish things and go with him because he thinks so much of me and will in time be a model man.

We have different tastes and it is sometimes very hard for us to agree. I am nineteen years old but I hardly know my own mind. My family is also fond of the above young man. When I tell this boy that I cannot see him and start having dates I am also miserable because he cares so much for me that I can see how hurt he is. What would you advise me to do?

I hate to settle down to one boy, for I enjoy the society of a lot of others, because I like to dance, swim, play tennis and enjoy music. He likes none of these things and sometimes I wonder if the difference in our tastes will affect our future happiness.

LES MISERABLE.

It would not be at all wise for you to settle down to the young man who objects to your having other friends. Your taste and his do not agree, and therefore you are by no means an ideal couple. You say that he will turn into a model man. Probably he will turn into one model, but there are other models, too, and if you were to be happy in marriage you will wait until you find a model who enjoys athletics, dancing and music, as you do. A man is not necessarily wicked because he dances, plays tennis and listens to music. Such a man can be just as kind, sympathetic and good as the man who hasn't the energy or imagination to seek recreation, or whose scruples forbid it. We all have a right to our opinions and if the young man believes recreation to be wrong, he should be admired for living up to his ideals.

Since you are only nineteen, you can certainly afford to enjoy many friends for a while longer and not make up your mind about marriage until you are sure of your love.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please print all the colors which a blonde can wear so that she will look attractive and at her best and not pale and faded?

BLUE EYES.

It is most difficult to advise a choice of colors because the word blonde or brunette is almost meaningless in such a matter. A combination of color of eyes, hair and skin settles the matter. Some blondes are beautiful in pink, while others have too much color in their cheeks to wear it. Blues of different shades are safer than anything else for a blonde. Often brown is good. White is attractive if the skin is white. Orchid and light green are usually good. The only thing for you to do is to consult your friends of taste who know your particular coloring and they will help you to decide what you can wear most becomingly.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Is it affected to use candles on a dinner table when entertaining guests? I love them, but I have the feeling that I am showing off when I use them. HELEN S.

It is not affected to burn candles during a dinner. The effect is beautiful and entirely desirable.

Poems That Live

ON THE CASTLE OF CHILLON

Eternal Spirit of the chainless Mind!
Brightest in dungeons, Liberty, thou art,—
For there thy habitation is the heart—
The heart which love of Thee alone can bind;

And when thy sons to fetters are consign'd,
To fetters, and the damp vault's dayless gloom,
Their country conquers with their martyrdom,
And Freedom's fame finds wings on every wind.

Chillon! thy prison is a holy place,
And thy floor an altar, for 'twas trod,
Until his very steps have left a trace,

Worn as if thy cold pavement were a sod!
By Bonnivard! May none those marks efface!
For they appeal from tyranny to God.

—Lord Byron.

THE TIGER

Tiger, tiger, burning bright
In the forests of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Could frame thy fearful symmetry?

In what distant deeps or skies
Burnt the fire of thine eyes?
On what wings dare he aspire?
What the hand dare seize the fire?

And what shoulder and what art
Could twist the sinews of thy heart?
And, when thy heart began to beat,
What dread hand and what dread feet?

What the hammer? What the chain?
In what furnace was thy brain?
What the anvil? What dread grasp
Dare its deadly terrors clasp?

When the stars threw down their spears,
And water'd heaven with their tears,
Did He smile His work to see?
Did He who made the lamb make thee?

Tiger, tiger, burning bright
In the forests of the night,
What immortal hand or eye
Dare frame thy fearful symmetry?

—William Blake.

Just as a general proposition, water-borne diseases, like typhoid and cholera, are also communicated from man to man by way of the kitchen.

GLENDALE BEATS LEAGUE LEADERS

Heidler's Bunch Hands Neat Trimming to Team From San Fernando

Glendale's fast-traveling, hard-hitting ball team humbled the league leaders, San Fernando, 9 to 2, yesterday afternoon on the home grounds, before the largest crowd of fans ever witnessing a baseball game in this city, estimated at 1200 persons.

Both at bat and in the field, the local boys exhibited real class, well pleasing the large turnout of supporters.

Manager Walt Heidler, as hurler for the Glendale nine, was the outstanding star of the game. Although a little wild, he pitched great ball, striking out fourteen batsmen and allowing but four scattered hits. In addition he lined out a scorching single and made a neat sacrifice bunt.

"Slim" Harris, official gardener of the local boys' right daisy patch, was the heavy stickster, connecting for a high and happy home run, a loud and merry three-base wallop and a whooping single, in five trips to the plate.

"Lefty" Harrison also played a big game for the Glendale outfit, handling first in veteran style and also smacking out a lusty three-base wallop.

Cruz Was Easy

Cecil Cruz, much talked-of moundsman for the visitors, was by no means an obstacle to the local bats, eleven clean hits being had from his offerings and a good time enjoyed by all.

This satisfying win puts Glendale just half a game behind the league leaders, San Fernando having won seven games and lost two, the local nine having won seven and lost three.

Manager Walt Heidler says "We're sure doing our share to pull San Fernando out of first place, as we handed them their only two losses!"

Next Sunday the Glendale boys travel to Pasadena to take on the entry from that city.

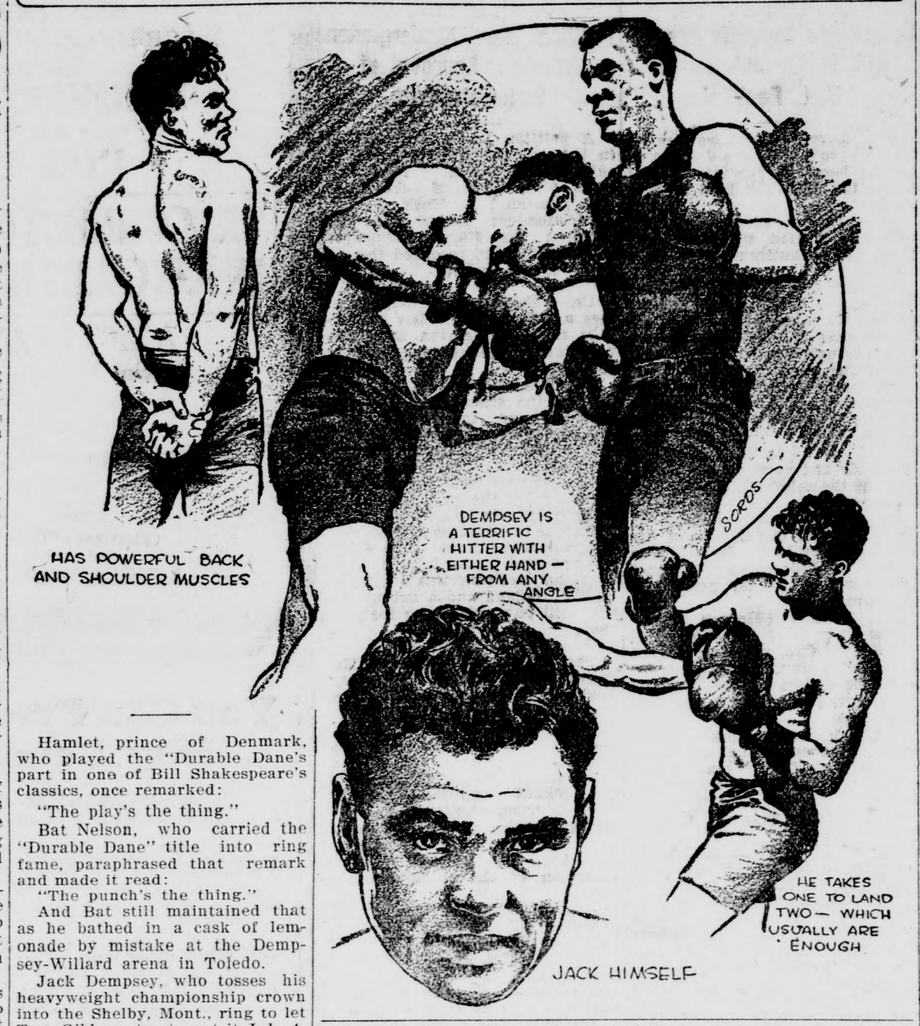
The Punch's The Thing



HAS POWERFUL BACK AND SHOULDER MUSCLES
DEMPSEY IS A TERRIFIC HITTER WITH EITHER HAND — FROM ANY ANGLE
HE TAKES ONE TO LAND TWO — WHICH USUALLY ARE ENOUGH
JACK HIMSELF
SCROS

Hamlet, prince of Denmark, who played the "Durable Dane's part in one of Bill Shakespeare's classics, once remarked:

"The play's the thing."

Bat Nelson, who carried the "Durable Dane" title into ring fame, paraphrased that remark and made it read:

"The punch's the thing."

And Bat still maintained that as he bathed in a cask of lemonade by mistake at the Dempsey-Willard arena in Toledo.

Jack Dempsey, who tosses his heavyweight championship crown into the Shelby, Mont., ring to let Tom Gibbons try to get it July 4, holds to the same theory.

Dempsey's main stock in trade is a terrific wallop in each hand —and no one gainsays him the ability to use that wallop. Thomas the Gib will have to stay away from those punches—make Dempsey miss—if he hopes to succeed the Manassa Mauler as champ.

Dempsey is built for hitting. He has, first of all, powerful back and shoulder muscles. His upper arm muscles are just as powerful and his forearms are built strong enough to stand the jar of the impact when he turns loose the power of those muscles.

He has well built legs which give him firm position when he delivers his mule wallops. His back may be a bit slender. It has been said that his back is weak —that he could not stand a gruelling battle of 10 or 15 rounds for that reason. But a lady who was awfully grieved at Jack started that story. So far Jack's back hasn't given out in any of his ring battles because they haven't lasted long enough.

Some of these bozoes with husky muscles, such as Jack carries, are as muscle bound as a two-half hitch knot in a wet rope. But Jack isn't handicapped this way. He is fast and supple.

Dempsey has a fair defense. He can check blows and has a shifty style that makes him hard to hit —serves as an extra defense. But he seldom uses defensive tactics. He prefers to take one—to get a chance to sock back two or three. Two wallops usually are sufficient. A left below the heart and a right to the "button" are enough. It was these two wallops that spelled curtains for Jessica Willard — although Jacques had to swat Jessica down six more times before the big boy had enough. The first two wallops, however, paralyzed Willard's poorly conditioned carcass.

How much hitting power Dempsey has lost while doing vaudeville turns and signing up as president of a mining concern or two, is for you to guess. He probably has lost some of the dynamite in his mitts.

But he packed an awful wad of it two years ago, when he met Carpentier. And he sneaked the whole Dupont powder works into his corner when he met Willard.

And unless the durned stuff's got wet while he's been taking life easy he probably still has half a dozen sticks of TNT in both mitts.

Mr. Gibbons will be the piece de resistance—or something like that—on which Jack will demonstrate how much mustard he still packs in his wallops.

PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

With bankers and business men of Shelby rushing in to guarantee the second instalment of the Dempsey-Gibbons purse one would be led to infer that the money from the advance sale of tickets was not coming in overly fast.

Fishing as a training stunt seems to be the rage at Shelby. Dempsey has just returned from a trip to the streams and Gibbons now hies him forth.

One hundred thousand dollars for a return match between McTigue and Siki is an alleged offer that is printed on the sports pages. High finance in pugilism has run amuck or else promoters have gone mad in the belief that the public is still madder than they are.

It seems strange to think that a quarter of a century has passed since Clarence Hobart, one of America's premier tennis players, won the Northern British lawn tennis championship at Liverpool, defeating the English contestant, Wolff. Likewise it shows that this business of American tennis players invading the Continent is nothing new.

It is expected that the California stadium at Berkeley will be ready for the football season. The work being done presents a tremendous engineering task. The whole side of a rock hill is being bitten out on one side and will form a natural rock base for the seats.

Bert Colina, a Pacific Coast boxer, seems to be versatile if nothing else. He already holds the light and welterweight championships of that section, and now his manager says he will start his boy after the light-heavy and heavyweight titles.

The sisters, Anna and Lucy McCune, holders of the Pacific Coast doubles lawn tennis championships, are playing fine tennis and their success of the past two seasons seems in line to be repeated. They were practically unknown when they first began to enter competitive tournaments in 1920. Doubles is their forte. Although individually not particularly impressive, they have so perfected their team play as to have attracted the attention and interest of the critics.

George Stallings' prediction three years ago that he would finally dislodge the Baltimore Orioles as perennial International pennant winners with his Buffalo club, seems in a fair way of fulfilment this season.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.

PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25.—Rumors are persistent that those back of the Pacific Coast Baseball league are having sleepless nights over the matter of the probable financial results. While the public at large is of the opinion that all over the country ball leagues are gathering in a record crop of shekels, there are indications that the Pacific Coast organization is having a contrary experience and the situation is a more or less serious one.

Just what is being said and done behind the scenes is, of course, not known, but there is a lot of thinking being done on the part of those who are financially interested.

Salt Lake City, Portland and Seattle are money losers and the Oakland combination is none too strong. Oakland has for so many years provided its fans with mediocre and bad teams that it is no wonder the public has become more or less disgusted paying its good money to see a team year after year that never finishes better than in the second division. They have been in the cellar position for the greater part of this year, and the indications are that that is about where it will finish.

Much of the present condition is ascribed to a loss of interest owing to the strength of the San Francisco club, which has a lead that seems to preclude the possibilities of a race for the pennant, much as is the case in the two major leagues where the New York teams are away out ahead.

The division in the ranks of the league has not done the organization any good, and the controversy now on regarding the ownership of the Seattle club is another factor that has disgusted the fans. The public is anxious for the game and has no stomach for the politics involved, and when owners and maager begin to disagree among themselves and call each other names the fan simply steps out of the picture.

On the whole, the condition is least to be ascribed to the strength and standing of the teams than it is to the politics and fights which the officials have instigated within their own ranks. They are simply reaping the results of their stupidity.

President William H. McCarthy probably is of this opinion, and he is doing his utmost to get the thing straightened out as quickly as possible and the cards all placed on the table so as to reassure the fans, but he is being blocked by the petty politicians in the league who have an ax to grind. At all events, McCarthy has the support of the public as against the league owners who have instigated the mess.

TAGGING ALL BASES

Again defeating the Boston Braves 6 to 3, the Giants registered their sixth straight win.

Brooklyn scored six runs in the first on one hit, five walks, an error and a hit batsman and beat the Phils 9 to 4.

Alexander was in rare form and the Cubs whitewashed Cincinnati 2 to 0.

The seventh was lucky for the Pirates and the four runs tallied were enough to give the Cards a 6 to 4 cleaning.

With Mogridge invincible, Washington handed the Athletics an 8 to 0 shutout.

EAGLE ROCK

ISSUES WARNING OF GRASS FIRES

Blaze of Last Week Brings Orders for Careful Burning of Brush

Citizens of the Eagle Rock section are warned by Lt. E. W. Welty of Engine No. 42, the local fire department, to be particularly careful about grass fires.

In view of the fact that Sunday a week ago there raged the worst grass fire the section has ever experienced, requiring the services of several hundred boys and men to extinguish, it is felt at the department that, with summer and the dry weather coming on, every precaution should be taken to guard against a repetition of such an occurrence.

But for the prompt arrival of the Los Angeles fire fighting apparatus, and the valiant efforts of the volunteer fire-fighters, the homes of L. F. Reed, W. Gregory, M. Conanu, W. Moore and several other residences on College View might have gone up in flames in that recent spectacular grass fire.

Citizens are urged by Lieutenant Welty and other members of the department to burn up, with care, all rubbish and dry grass about their homes, and to make fire-breaks.

Fire prevention, they point out, is at the present time among the most important problems confronting the community.

Another Near Fire

A fire broke out on the premises of the Cadell Motor Company, on West Colorado boulevard, last Friday a week ago, which might also have gained serious proportions, but was put out with a chemical extinguisher before the arrival of the engine. The damage was trifling.

Want Preserved Fruit

Either Mrs. Parker or Mrs. Roberts, of the school cafeteria committee, will be glad to furnish a jar to each woman of Eagle Rock who will pledge herself to fill it with preserved fruit and return it to the school cafeteria in the fall.

Mrs. Bradford, of South Douglas avenue, has purchased the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H .Bueter, of Valley drive.

Miss Gladys Crosswell, of Occidental College, met with a slight automobile accident recently, on Central avenue near the offices of the Eagle Rock Lumber Company.

The American College Study class, which meets with Mrs. A. C. Fiske, 203 North Castle avenue, will probably continue its sessions during the summer, there being a general request that this be done. In such a case, the class would go on with a study of the Persians and Phoenecians, having finished the course on the Medes.

The following were among the Eagle Rock women attending the sessions of the W. G. M. C. convention in the First United Presbyterian church, Los Angeles, from Saturday until Thursday of last week: Mesdames J. P. Tracy, J. C. Reiter, Alma Miller, J. Schwesinger, Jr., J. G. Kennedy, Balff McNary, Van Lee Hood, Bradley.

Mrs. Alma Miller, of North Acacia avenue, is entertaining Mrs. A. E. Curry, of Pennsylvania, Mrs. S. C. Doty, of San Diego, and Miss Ida McIntosh, of Riverside, who attended the W. G. M. C. convention.

TUJUNGA

LARGER SCHOOL SYSTEM PLANNED

Petition for Kindergarten Receives Approval of Superintendent

A petition for a kindergarten in the Tujunga school was circulated and signed by thirty parents of children of school age and presented to Mark Keppel, superintendent of schools at Los Angeles. Mr. Keppel approved the addition and returned the petition to the school board for action.

Under these conditions the trustees are required by law to provide the kindergarten and the necessary additions were made to the budget.

Mr. Keppel wrote to the trustees of the school that the district's income from state and county taxes is estimated at $15,088 for the coming year, ending June 30, 1924.

The trustees have checked the accounts for the past year and made up the budget for the coming year, to be presented to the superintendent and supervisors for approval. The total amount expended last year was under the budget adopted and a substantial sum will be carried over for next year.

Pick C. E. Officers

The Tujunga Christian Endeavor Society elected the following officers for the coming year: Miss Marzelle Greer, president; Miss Bertha May Johnson, vice president; Eugene Farr, secretary; Adelaide Gibson, treasurer; Albert Wells, chairman of the lookout committee; Bertha May Johnson, chairman of the prayer meeting committee; Joyce Farr, chairman of the Missionary committee and Loren Scoville, chairman of the social committee.

Joyce Farr has charge of an orchestra that is being organized by the society.

Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Hartranft have planned a trip east that will include a visit to Mr. Hartranft's old home in New Jersey.

Josephine Des Mazes has returned to Tujunga from Hollywood where she was engaged in the millinery business. Miss Des Mazes has a milinery business on Broadway, Glendale, at the Court Shops.

At the last meeting of the Tujunga Woman's club a resolution was adopted asking the county supervisors to enforce the ordinance prohibiting the cutting of yucca plants.

SUNLAND

START TO BUILD PACOIMA BRIDGE

Structure Across Wash West Of Sunland Will Be Last Highway Link

The bridge over the Pacoima wash, west of Sunland on the State Highway to San Fernando, has been started. Camp houses have been erected and excavations started for the concrete piers that will support the bridge.

During the process of building, automobile travel will use a slight detour at this point. This bridge will form the last link in this highway and eliminate a quarter of a mile of bad going that has deterred travel more or less for some time.

Earthly and Heavenly Homes Are Contrasted

The Tropico Presbyterian church's congregation yesterday morning listened to a discourse upon the subject of "Own Your Own Home."

The text was: "For we know that, if the earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

"This text," said Dr. J. F. Winnard, "is one of the sustaining truths of the Scripture, enabling us to endure hardship now, knowing that the reward is ours in the hereafter. The nature of our new home is 'Eternal in the heavens.' The average lifetime of a wooden building is about thirty years, that of brick perhaps one hundred years, but our real home is eternal. Its builder and maker is God, for it is a house not made with hands, and it will be worthy of its maker.

"Just when we will occupy it, we know not. Christ has said: 'I go to prepare a place for you.' But when the 'earthly house of this tabernacle is dissolved,' we know that we shall not be homeless. To be sure of our right and title let us give earnest heed to make 'our calling and election sure.'"

It is far better to indulge in patience than to account for an impatient outburst.

A compound of knowledge and grit prevents a man from sinking.

You Can Prevent That Hay Fever Suffering

Weekly Health Talk No. 35
By Drs. Eble & Eble, Ds.C.

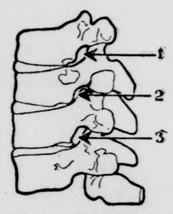
Why should chiropractic succeed with hay fever when everything else has failed? The question is a natural one and there is an equally sound and natural answer for it. Chiropractic is utterly different from all other methods. There is no substitute for it.

In hay fever there is a lack of resistance to the flying pollen of summer that infects the weakened linings of the air passages. When this resistance is normal it readily and easily throws off this infection. Only about one person in twenty has hay fever because about nineteen out of every twenty persons have enough resistance to overcome the infection. Chiropractic spinal adjustments release the full degree of nerve energy to the tissues and linings of the air passages and with normal resistance thus established hay fever is defeated.

UNCLE BEN SAYS:

"There's a lot of fellows, nevvy, who have been told to say nothing and saw wood and they're trying to carry out the advice with a hammer."

KEEP YOUNG FACTS FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE



No. 1—Nerve opening narrowed to 50% normal. (Healthful impulses can not travel pinched nerve lines.)

No. 2. — Cartilage badly thinned opening 20% normal. (Life flutters feebly on nerve lines so squeezed.)

No. 3—Normal life impulses through such an opening keep you young.

The chiropractor by adjustments of these movable vertabrae correct diseases of the head eyes, ears, nose, throat, arms, heart, lungs, liver, stomach, pancreas, spleen, kidneys, bowels and lower limbs.

WELL NOW OF ROSE COLD IN JUNE AND HAY FEVER IN AUGUST

"From the time I can first remember every summer brought hay fever. My trouble would start with rose cold in June and by August I would be talking like a rubber door mat, feeling perfectly miserable and yet perfectly helpless for nothing ever did me any good. My nose would swell and my eyes were inflamed. I hated the sight of a mirror for I looked like a funeral. And then I tried chiropractic and got well! I knew what it was to breathe like a human being in August! That was three years ago. Last year I had a touch of it and chiropractic promptly squelched it. It will never worry me again." —Miss Ada Rubush, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1362F.

Buick

Although Southern California has already registered nearly 6000 1923 Buick cars (more 1923 cars by far than any other make besides Ford), up to now we could not give that highly satisfactory answer of "Immediate delivery." This condition of having to promise delivery in 90 days resulted actually in hundreds of customers whose first choice was Buick-----buying other makes.

Our efforts to get shipments increased have finally been successful—and we have secured cars for June over and above our regular allotment.

IMMEDIATE deliveries on some models. Deliveries from shipments now en route on all models.
